The Woods Of Ireland A History 700 18:

The Woods of Ireland Nigel Everett, 2015-05 The accepted view of Irish woodlands is that Ireland was covered in trees until the English came and chopped them down While admirable in its brevity this interpretation is inadequate regarding the actual management of Irish forests from the later Gaelic era to the close of the 18th century This book focuses on the fundamentally pragmatic and commercial view of trees adopted by much of Gaelic civilization as well as the attempts of the various Anglo Irish administrations to introduce more conservative woodland practices By the late 17th century the re-forestation of Ireland had become a paramount badge of respectability for Irish landowners and gave rise to a distinctive body of landscape design and painting exemplified by the works of Thomas Roberts and William Ashford Everett's latest book illuminates the culture economy and politics of a nation by examining the natural landscape and human interaction with it exhaustively researched and lucidly written a must for any academic library Essential Choice Vol 52 No 10 June 2015

Selected for the annual CHOICE Outstanding Academic Titles list for 2015 in the field of Botany Subject History Irish Studies Forest Management Irish Materialisms Colleen Taylor, 2024 Irish Materialisms The Nonhuman and the Making of Colonial Ireland 1690 1830 is the first book to apply recent trends in new materialist criticism to Ireland It radically shifts familiar colonial stereotypes of the feminized racialized cottier according to the Irish peasantry's subversive entanglement with nonhuman materiality Each of the chapters engages a focused case study of an everyday object in colonial Ireland coins flax spinning wheels mud and pigs to examine how each object's unique materiality contributed to the colonial ideology of British paternalism and afforded creative Irish expression The main argument of Irish Materialisms is its methodology of reading literature through the agency of materiality and nonhuman narrative in order to gain a more egalitarian and varied understanding of colonial experience Irish Materialisms proves that new materialism holds powerful postcolonial potential Through an intimate understanding of the materiality Irish peasants handled on a daily basis this book presents a new portrait of Irish character that reflects greater empowerment resistance and expression in the oppressed Irish than has been previously recognized Ireland William Laffan, Christopher P. Monkhouse, Leslie Fitzpatrick, 2015-01-01 A sweeping survey of the arts of Ireland spanning 150 years and an astonishing range of artists and media This groundbreaking book captures a period in Ireland's history when countless foreign architects artisans and artists worked side by side with their native counterparts Nearly all of the works within this remarkable volume many of them never published before have been drawn from North American collections This catalogue accompanies the first exhibition to celebrate the Irish as artists collectors and patrons over 150 years of Ireland's sometimes turbulent history Featuring the work of a wide range of artists known and unknown and a diverse array of media the catalogue also includes an impressive assembly of essays by a pre eminent group of international experts working on the art and cultural history of Ireland Major essays discuss the subjects of the Irish landscape and tourism Irish country houses and Dublin's role as a center of culture and commerce Also included are
