Wic Program Supplemental Nutrition Children:

Rethinking WIC Douglas J. Besharov, Peter Germanis, 2001 This book analyzes the research on the effectiveness of the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women Infants and Children The WIC Program Rosalie Parsons, 2015 The Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women Infants and Children WIC provides supplemental nutrition rich foods and nutrition education including breastfeeding promotion and support as well as referrals to health care and social services to low income nutritionally at risk women infants and children up to five years old Eligible women are specifically limited to those pregnant and post partum if breastfeeding women are eligible for more benefits for a longer period of time The WIC program seeks to improve the health status of its participants and prevent the occurrence of health problems during critical times of growth and development This book provides an overview of the WIC program including administration funding eligibility benefits benefits redemption and cost containment policies It also examines program trends and discusses some of the major economic issues facing the program A Primer on Wic Congressional Research Service, 2017-04-15 The Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women Infants and Children WIC provides nutrition rich foods nutrition education including breastfeeding promotion and support and health care and social services referrals to eligible low income women infants and children In FY2016 approximately 7.7 million people participated in WIC each month WIC is authorized by the Child Nutrition Act as is the related WIC Farmers Market Nutrition Program WIC FMNP WIC FMNP school meals and the other child nutrition programs are typically reauthorized together these programs were last reauthorized in the Healthy Hunger Free Kids Act of 2010 P L 111 296 WIC's funding is discretionary and the bulk of program funds are allocated via formula grant to state agencies for food costs and Nutrition Services and Administration In FY2016 there were 90 state agencies 50 states District of Columbia 5 U S territories and 34 Indian Tribal Organizations These agencies operate the program through local WIC agencies and clinics The program obligated over 7 billion in federal funds in FY2014 WIC has a number of federal and state eligibility rules including categorical financial and nutritional risk Participants must fall into one of WIC's participant categories pregnant postpartum and breastfeeding women infants or children under five years of age Financial eligibility is met if 1 a household has income at or below 185% of the federal poverty level or 2 applicants receive benefits through Temporary Assistance for Needy Families TANF the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program SNAP Medicaid or certain state programs Households also must meet nutritional risk criteria and reside in the state of application WIC provides participants with monthly benefits redeemable for specified foods to supplement their diets as well as related nutrition and health services WIC eligible foods are laid out in federal regulation and state agencies develop their own approved food lists within this framework At the WIC clinic participants are provided the benefits to redeem specific foods food package for the participant's category and individual nutritional needs Major changes to the federal WIC food package regulations have been made in recent years for some participant categories the food package now includes a cash value

voucher redeemable for fruits and vegetables One way that state agencies control WIC costs is through their approved foods lists These lists usually include one brand of infant formula as state agencies are required to control infant formula costs through competitive bidding for infant formula rebate contracts In addition to providing food benefits states are required to ensure that nutrition education including breastfeeding promotion and drug abuse education is available to all pregnant postpartum and breastfeeding participants in the program Agencies also work to refer WIC participants to health services and other public programs particularly Medicaid Nearly all states administer their programs through a retail food delivery system in which participants purchase foods at authorized retailers vendors Accordingly many WIC policies at the federal and state levels pertain to vendor authorization and oversight as well as benefit redemption Currently most states distribute checks or vouchers for participants to purchase WIC foods at vendors however state agencies are increasingly transitioning to electronic benefit transfer EBT in part because the 2010 reauthorization law requires this transition by October 1 2020 States authorize vendors for the program considering factors like a vendor's inventory and capacity and geographic distribution of vendors States also consider and monitor WIC vendors pricing as required by federal law to help contain program costs Colorado WIC, the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants and Children, 2016

Child Nutrition Programs, 1989 Review of WIC Food Packages National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Health and Medicine Division, Food and Nutrition Board, Committee to Review WIC Food Packages, 2017-05-25 The Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women Infants and Children WIC began 40 years ago as a pilot program and has since grown to serve over 8 million pregnant women and mothers of and their infants and young children Today the program serves more than a quarter of the pregnant women and half of the infants in the United States at an annual cost of about 6.2 billion Through its contribution to the nutritional needs of pregnant breastfeeding and post partum women infants and children under 5 years of age this federally supported nutrition assistance program is integral to meeting national nutrition policy goals for a significant portion of the U.S. population To assure the continued success of the WIC Congress mandated that the Food and Nutrition Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture USDA reevaluate the program's food packages every 10 years In 2014 the USDA asked the Institute of Medicine to undertake this reevaluation to ensure continued alignment with the goals of the Dietary Guidelines for Americans In this third report the committee provides its final analyses recommendations and the supporting rationale Child nutrition amendments of 1978 United States. Congress. Senate. Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry. Subcommittee on Nutrition, 1978 The Chairman's Report on Children in America, 1986 Child Nutrition Amendments of 1978 United States. Congress. Senate. Committee on Agriculture and Forestry, 1978 Vibrant and Healthy Kids National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Health and Medicine Division, Board on Population Health and Public Health Practice, Committee on Applying Neurobiological and Socio-Behavioral Sciences from Prenatal Through Early Childhood Development: A Health Equity Approach, 2019-12-27

Children are the foundation of the United States and supporting them is a key component of building a successful future. However, millions of children face health inequities that compromise their development, well-being, and long-term outcomes. Despite substantial scientific evidence about how these adversities contribute to poor health, advancements in neurobiological and socio-behavioral science show that critical biological systems develop in the prenatal through early childhood periods, and neurobiological development is extremely responsive to environmental influences during these stages. Consequently, social, economic, cultural, and environmental factors significantly affect a child's health ecosystem and ability to thrive throughout adulthood. Vibrant and Healthy Kids: Aligning Science, Practice, and Policy to Advance Health Equity builds upon and updates research from Communities in Action: Pathways to Health Equity (2017) and From Neurons to Neighborhoods: The Science of Early Childhood Development (2000). This report provides a brief overview of stressors that affect childhood development and health, a framework for applying current brain and development science to the real world, a roadmap for implementing tailored interventions and recommendations about improving systems to better align with our understanding of the significant impact of health equity.
