Aging and Neuropsychological Assessment Asenath LaRue,2013-06-29 It is a privilege to be asked to write the foreword for so excellent a book so timely and so much needed by the field Not only is it most unusual these days to have a single authored volume on so broad a topic but Dr La Rue has done a superb job of providing both a scholarly treatise and a practical handbook With a burgeoning elderly population and the corresponding increase in geriatric psychopathology the needs of mental health services are exceeding by far the supply of appropriate providers In an effort to meet this need psychiatry medicine neurology pharmacology psychology nursing and social work have all made the provision of training in geriatrics and gerontology a high priority but I fear we are losing the race For example multidisciplinary teams that assess diagnose and treat mental health disorders in elderly patients are incomplete without clinical psychologists and neuropsychologists and yet there is barely a handful of clinical psychologists trained in dealing with geriatric patients We can count on our fingers the additional ones graduated each year In hospitals clinics and private practices across the country otherwise skilled psychologists are unprepared to respond to the special mental health needs of the elderly A few CME programs are helping to address this need but they are clearly not enough      Measuring and Improving Performance James William

Martin,2009-08-26 As a pioneer in Lean improvement methods Jim Martin was among the first to suggest that truly successful Lean initiatives are those applied across every facet of an organization not just on the shop floor Building on this concept Martin demonstrates that one of the most effective ways to implement operational improvements across an organization      Advances in Psychological Assessment Paul McReynolds,James C. continuing series In this context we encourage those readers who are pleased with the offerings in this volume to consult appropriate chapters in earlier volumes of the series The term psychological assessment as used in this series encompasses all of the various techniques tests rating scales interview schedules surveys direct observational methods and psychophysiological procedures that are employed in scientifically based practice and research to provide an improved understanding of individual persons groups or environmental settings Thus the whole field of assessment is taken as the proper area of concern for the series This includes both what are sometimes called traditional assessment and behavioral assessment as well as approaches not typically classed in either of these categories
