The End of Divine Truthiness: Love, Power, and God Paul Joseph Greene, 2017-08-01 In The End of Divine Truthiness Paul Joseph Greene confronts stark realities of terrifying theologies that make a mockery out of divine love With urgent resolve Greene answers Martin Luther King Jr's pointed challenge to overcome reckless and abusive power without love and sentimental and anemic love without power Too many theologies cast God either as the tyrant whose loveless power lifts up the mighty or the victim whose powerless love sends the poor away empty Wielding Stephen Colbert's word truthiness as a scalpel Greene slices out one perilous theology after another to restore the wholesome truth that God is love Supported by three world religions Buddhism Christianity and Taoism he discovers a remarkably harmonious and revolutionary divine power that is fully aligned with divine love To reunify love and power here in the world as King challenges it is time to abandon ideologies of divine power that devastate divine love and promote atrocities Greene's call for the end of divine truthiness heralds a new day for the God whose love is power and whose power is love

God is Green Bob Shore-Goss, 2016-10-28 At this time of climate crisis here is a practical Christian ecospirituality It emerges from the pastoral and theological experience of Reverend Robert Shore Goss who worked with his congregation by making the earth a member of the church by greening worship and by helping the church building and operations attain a carbon neutral footprint Shore Goss explores an ecospirituality grounded in incarnational compassion Practicing incarnational compassion means following the lived praxis of Jesus and the commission of the risen Christ as Gardener Jesus becomes the green face of God Restrictive Christian spiritualities that exclude the earth as an original blessing of God must expand This expansion leads to the realization that the incarnation of Christ has deep roots in the earth and the fleshly or biological tissue of life This book aims to foster ecological conversation in churches and outlines the following practices for congregations meditating on nature inviting sermons on green topics covenanting with the earth and retrieving the natural elements of the sacraments These practices help us recover ourselves as fleshly members of the earth and the network of life If we fall in love with God s creation says Shore Goss we will fight against climate change      Christian Faith and the Environment Brennan Hill, 1998      American Baptist Quarterly , 1998      Divinity & Diversity Marjorie Suchocki, 2003 One of today s foremost theologians presents the case for embracing religious pluralism as integral to the Christian gospel Religious pluralism is a fact in North American society today More than at any other time adherents of different religious traditions live work and play side by side Yet the fact of religious pluralism creates a tension for a large number of Christians At the same time they have realized that Muslims Hindus Buddhists Jews and members of many other religious groups have become their neighbors they are also aware of Christian teachings that seem to exclude these groups Statements such as no one comes to the Father except through me and outside the church there is no salvation seem to imply that these new neighbors are not part of the family of God or at least that their religious beliefs and practices are not viable avenues to human wholeness and salvation In this insightful and irenic work Marjorie Hewitt Suchocki demonstrates that Christians need not ignore nor even compromise the teachings of the gospel in order to accept and rejoice in religious pluralism She argues that the Christian doctrines of creation incarnation the image of God and the reign of God make the diversity of religions necessary Without such diversity the rich and deep community of humanity that is the goal of the Christian gospel cannot be realized Along the way Suchocki rejects the exclusivist claim that there can be no relationship with God apart from the church and the inclusivist idea that Christianity is the highest expression of the search for God with other religions possessing in part that which Christians possess in full She argues instead for a pluralist position insisting on a full recognition of the distinctive gifts that all of the religious traditions bring to the human table      African Earthkeepers M. L. Daneel,2001 Marthinus L Daneel profiles an African instituted interfaith earthkeeping mission that illustrates the transformation of the religious landscape now underway in the sub Saharan world Part One introduces the African initiated churches showing how their earthkeeping movement in Zimbabwe gives voice to African religious convictions as the people struggle with drought and moribund political structures In Part Two Daneel reflects theologically on the independent church movement helping the reader understand the meaning and challenge of these churches This book is the single best study of the African Independent Church movement available today      Current Contents Institute for Scientific Information (Philadelphia),1997      American Book Publishing Record ,1995      Regent University law review ,2003      Missionalia ,2002 Contains abstracts of missiological contributions book reviews and articles      Philosophy East & West ,1996
