Group Formation

Group formation is the process by which a group is created. It is the initial stage of group development, where individuals come together to form a group. The process of group formation is influenced by a variety of factors, including the nature of the task, the characteristics of the individuals involved, and the social context in which the group is formed. Group formation is a critical stage in the development of a group, as it sets the foundation for the group's future interactions and performance.
