DTC P0712 Transmission Fluid Temperature Sensor Circuit—Low Input

Circuit Description

The Transmission Fluid Temperature (TFT) sensor is incorporated into the Pressure Switch Manifold (PSM), which is located in the transmission oil pan. The TFT sensor is a thermistor that changes its resistance value based on the temperature of the transmission fluid. The Transmission Control Module (TCM) measures the voltage drop across the TFT sensor. As the TFT sensor resistance changes the voltage drop recorded across the thermistor will increase or decrease proportionately. The TCM uses this information to determine sump temperature.
