Designing Peace Neophytos Loizides, 2016-01-08 Why do some societies choose to adopt federal settlements in the face of acute ethnic conflict while others do not Neophytos Loizides examines how acrimoniously divided Cyprus could reunify by adopting a federal and consociational arrangement inspiring similar attempts in its region Loizides asserts that institutional innovation is key in designing peace processes Analyzing power sharing in Northern Ireland the return of displaced persons in Bosnia and the preparatory mandate referendum in South Africa he shows how divided societies have implemented novel solutions despite conditions that initially seemed prohibitive Turning to Cyprus he chronicles the breakthrough that led to the exhumations of the missing after 2003 and observes that a society's choice of narratives and institutions can overcome structural constraints While Loizides points to the relative absence of successful federal and consociational arrangements among societies evolving from the post Ottoman space he argues that neither elites nor broader societies in the region must be held hostages to the past To effect lasting and positive change Loizides encourages stakeholders in divided societies to be prepared to identify redesign and implement innovative new institutions Examining successful peace mediations and identifying the shared experience and commonalities between Cyprus and other divided societies promises not only to inform the tackling of the Cyprus problem but also to provide transferable knowledge with broader implications for the fields of peace studies and conflict resolution

Civil Society in the Global South Palash Kamruzzaman, 2018-12-07 In recent years civil society has been seen as a key route for democracy promotion and solving development problems in low income countries However the very concept of civil society is deeply rooted in European traditions and values In pursuing civil society reform in non Western countries many scholars along with well meaning international agencies and donor organisations fail to account for non Western values and historical experiences Civil Society in the Global South seeks to redress this balance by offering diverse accounts of civil society from the global South authored by scholars and researchers who are reflecting on their observations of civil society in their own countries The countries studied in the volume range from across Africa Latin America Asia and the Middle East to give a rich account of how countries from the global south conceptualise and construct civil society The book demonstrates how local conditions are often unsuited to the ideal type of civil society as delineated in Western values for instance in cases where numerous political racial and ethnic sub groups are fighting for autonomy By disentangling local contexts of countries from across the global South this book demonstrates that it is important to view civil society through the lens of local conditions rather than viewing it as something that needs to be discovered or manufactured in non Western societies Civil Society in the Global South will be particularly useful to high level students and scholars within development studies sociology anthropology social policy politics international relations and human geography
