PART 2. THE TRANSITION TO MODERNITY

In Part 1 we have looked at the pre-industrial world through discussions of prehistoric landscapes, the relationships between population, resources and sustainability, and also the role of large-scale planning. This brought us to the brink of the modern age, and indeed in some Sections we found ourselves looking at modern issues such as the land division of the United States and the current status of moorland and heathland in Britain.

It is time to press forward to address the impact of modern economic, social and cultural systems upon landscape and environment, but first we must look at the transitional period between traditional, pre-industrial, and pre-capitalist organizational forms and those which have emerged in more recent times. Chapter 11 will begin this by analyzing a number of patterns and trends in medieval feudalism in Europe, and Chapter 12 is devoted to the emergence of urban and industrial landscapes.

In essence the argument follows that of Dodgshon (1987), that the transition is essentially the story of the expression of newly formed hierarchies and nodes in a spatial form that can be called landscape. In a complex and tightly argued book, to which we can do little justice here, he finds that the territorial phenomenon of tribal societies, including the sort of Bronze Age field system planning that we encountered in Chapter 7, was later regulated and deepened in the nascent state-forming process. Dodgshon sees the state as 'a revolution in spatial order' and with it there was a revolution in its impact upon the surface of the earth. Urban centres emerged, with intensified, irrigated agriculture producing food surpluses, and social mobilization reached the level where permanent modifications could be made to ecosystems and unwitting damage could be inflicted upon the environment. These points have already been covered in Part 1.

The argument then encompasses feudalism, which is really a clever device for concentrating power in the hands of the few at a time when technology remained so primitive that it was difficult for the authorities to reach out and enforce their will in each locality. All levels of society voluntarily surrendered a degree of their personal power to their feudal superiors in return for the use of certain assets and other, vague promises about protection. This was a preliminary step along the evolutionary road of individual/state relations which has led to modern forms of governance with their highly efficient forms of surveillance and enforcement.

It was the stirring and eventual acceleration of trade and markets that at the same time conditioned and structured feudalism but also ensured its eventual demise, once its temporary usefulness was exhausted. The timing of the transition varied substantially and significantly, as we will see in Chapter 11. The outcomes were not homogeneous either, and a great deal of ink has been spilt describing the phases and incarnations of mercantilism (trading by

Transition To Modernity Transition To Modernity:

Transitions to Modernity in Taiwan Niki Alsford, 2017-07-20 On 19 April 1895 British Consul Lionel Charles Hopkins at the northern port of Tamsui was summoned by Tang Jingsong the governor of Taiwan to his yamen in the western district of Taipei Shortly after his arrival Hopkins was handed a petition Signed by a number of Taiwanese notables the document appealed to the British government to incorporate the island into a protectorate in the wake of an impending Japanese invasion The British declined This book addresses the interconnectivity of these two communities by focusing on the market town of Dadaocheng in northern Taiwan It seeks to contextualise and examine the establishment of a settler society as well as the creation of a sojourning British community showing how they became a precursor of modernity and middle classism there By uncovering who the signatories of the petition were and what their motivation was to call upon the British consulate to bring the island under its protection it brings into focus a remarkable period of transition not only for the history of Taiwan but also for the modern history of China Using 1895 as a year of enquiry it ultimately challenges the current orthodoxy that modernity in Taiwan was simply a by product of the Japanese colonial period As a social and transnational history of the events that took place in Taiwan during 1895 this book will be useful for students of East Asian Studies Modern Chinese Studies and Asian History

Resounding Transcendence Jeffers Engelhardt, Philip Bohlman, 2016-03-04 Resounding Transcendence is a pathbreaking volume exploring how sacred music effects religious and social transitions It covers Christian Muslim Jewish and Buddhist practices in Asia North America Africa and Europe Rich in ethnographic and historical detail and theoretically ambitious Resounding Transcendence is essential to the study of music and religion Identity Crises Robert G.

Dunn, 1998 Significant to Dunn's critique of poststructuralist and postmodern theories is his application of George Herbert Mead as a means of theorizing identity and difference The focus on postmodernity rather than postmodernism grounds his analysis of identity and difference both materially and socially Transitions in Domestic Consumption and Family Life in the Modern Middle East: Houses in Motion R. Shechter, 2003-11-28

The volume focuses on three countries Egypt Israel and Turkey earlier the Ottoman Empire in the period between the mid nineteenth and the early Twenty first centuries It studies the consumption of homes and domesticity as changing processes in space and time It further foregrounds research into the impact of economic political and socio cultural transformations on the private life of individuals Even more so the volume advances the discussion on the processes of restructuring of self identity and lifestyles via acts of consumption The volume focuses on the market where producers and consumers meet the state and the national movements with their respective ideologies and practices the role of advertisers but also the agency of individual and group choice In addition it discusses in different ways the close interrelations between the representation of home and domestic life for example in journals books and photography and the political economy of house consumption Thus this volume avoids the notion of linearity and progress in the transition to modern lifestyles in favour of more subtle accounts of the different venues in which people in the Middle East restructure their most immediate and intimate surroundings
