People professions such as social work, teaching, nursing, ministry and counselling are at heart ethical or moral enterprises. Much recent theorizing has been concerned to show that effective professional deliberation and judgement cannot be reduced either to technical rationality or to simple obedience to general occupational procedures or prescriptions. Professional judgement would seem to require the development of a distinctive mode of practical ethical reflection or wisdom, perhaps along the lines of Aristotle's phronesis or practical wisdom. Reflection is required to address such key professional concerns as: What is the impact of official prescription and regulation on professional judgement? How should conflicts of professional judgement and public political accountability be resolved? How might one reconcile tensions between universal justice and equality and particular client need? What is the role of emotion and or affect in people professional practice? This ground breaking work addresses in a thoroughly multidisciplinary way the central question of the nature of professional judgement and deliberation that has recently come to the fore in the academic literature of profession and professionalism. It proposes a marked shift in theory, practice and policy making away from technical rational approaches to professional decision making in favour of reflection and deliberation informed by responsible moral judgement. This reflects a significant progressive trend in this literature by taking practical wisdom rather than technical rationality to lie at the heart of professional judgement. It is unique in bringing together key authors from different professional fields to address the issue of professional wisdom in a cross professional and multidisciplinary way.
