Third Party Funding in International Arbitration Mohamed F. Sweify, 2023-02-14 The author of Third Party Funding in International Arbitration challenges the structural inconsistencies of the current practices of arbitration funding by arguing that third party funding should be a forum of justice rather than a forum of profit The author introduces a new methodology with an alternative way of structuring third party funding to solve a set of practical problems generated by the risk of claim control by the funder

Third-party Funding in International Arbitration ICC Institute of World Business Law. Meeting, International Chamber of Commerce, ICC Institute of World Business Law, 2013 La 4e de couverture indique The last decade has seen an exponential growth in both international commercial arbitration and international investment arbitration Nevertheless arbitration proceedings can prove to be very costly and their funding raises the delicate question of the accessibility of arbitration The solution offered by third party funding has undoubtedly become a fact of life in the world of arbitration despite reservations in some quarters Although continental countries continue to regard it with suspicion Anglo Saxon countries have embraced this solution and have already built up a body of experience in the field This publication considers the various funding techniques specific to international arbitration before looking at some of the legal issues raised by such funding and the reactions it may arouse among international arbitration practitioners This publication of the ICC Institute of World Business Law s latest contribution to its Dossiers series on new practices in international arbitration and is inspired by the wish to see those practices develop in a way that is compatible with the basic principles that ensure all parties rights

Handbook on Third-party Funding in International Arbitration Nikolaus Pitkowitz, 2018 The Handbook on Third Party Funding in International Arbitration was created through the collaboration of the ABA Section of International Law International Arbitration Committee the International Council for Commercial Arbitration ICCA and the Centre on Regulation Ethics and Rule of Law at Queen Mary University of London Their goal was to study identify and address the central issues and threats specific to the Third Party Funding TPF context and to provide guidance to legal practitioners when confronted with third party funding in international arbitration The Handbook on Third Party Funding in International Arbitration comprises six general chapters and 25 country specific reports providing global coverage and different perspectives Publisher

Third-Party Funding in Investment Arbitration Can Eken, 2024-07-19 This book offers a reference guide that can be consulted by all users of Third Party Funding TPF lawyers students and other interested readers In addition to analyzing TPF issues holistically with both doctrinal and empirical methods the book provides important empirical data on funders through interviews conducted with nearly thirty people working for third party funders It reveals a range of potential problems and lays out how to address them in the form of guidelines TPF has become a significant element of litigation and arbitration systems around the world for both theoretical and practical reasons Specifically in the context of investment arbitration the latest studies suggest that a large percentage of investment arbitration cases are sponsored by funders Despite its prevalence TPF has raised procedural and ethical concerns in the investment regime One of the caveats is that when states lose against an investor their taxpayers are who pay for the investment arbitration award essentially transferring the wealth of the states to the investor and now part of this wealth goes to the funder Whether or not the funder shares this wealth is anyone's guess and represents an ethical consideration Apart from ethical challenges TPF has also raised significant procedural problems in investment arbitration As funders enter the equation of arbitration proceedings in the investment regime consideration must be given to this new player and how TPF affects investment arbitration Overall the book assesses TPF in its entirety background information the main procedural issues and case law ethical aspects and empirical research on TPF including the funder's perspective By doing so it sheds new light on under researched issues and offers essential guidance to help orient legal policy

Third Party Funding in International Arbitration in Europe Prof Maxi Scherer, 2013 Third party funding has become one of the hot topics in international arbitration More and more parties whether in financial distress or not explore the possibility of using funders to provide the necessary cash to pay for their lawsuit allowing the funder to realise in return a percentage of the proceeds of the case or multiple of costs financed if successful Third party funding thus shows similarities to certain forms of insurance contracts where the insurer pays for the costs of the lawsuit including in certain cases for the opposing party's costs and contingency fee arrangements where the lawyer carries the costs of litigation in exchange for an interest in the proceeds of the case The exact definition of third party funding however remains elusive and its legal and ethical implications in international arbitration mostly unexplored This paper aims at filling the gap focusing in particular on the specificities of third party funding in international arbitration from a pan European perspective The project is organised in two stages This first paper is based on a round table discussion with representatives from several of the most prominent funds active in the area of international arbitration It addresses the actual practice and techniques of third party funding A second follow up paper will consider the legal implications of third party funding in international arbitration particularly from a civil law perspective

Third Party Funding Gian Marco Solas, 2019-09-26 In Third Party Funding Gian Marco Solas for the first time describes third party funding TPF as stand alone practice within the wider litigation and legal services markets The book reports on legal issues related to TPF in both common law and civil law jurisdictions and in the international context It then discusses the incentives and economics of TPF transactions in different legal contexts while explaining how the practice emerged and how it is likely to develop In addition the book offers practical insights into TPF transactions and analyzes a number of regulatory proposals that could affect its use and desirability This work should be read by scholars practitioners policymakers and anyone else interested in how TPF is changing the practice of law

Handbook on Third-party Funding in International Arbitration Nikolaus Pitkowicz, 2025

Third-Party Funding in International Arbitration Irene Röhrlisberger, 2015 Third party funding TPF is a thriving practice in international arbitration and this development is here to stay Much is written about TPF and opinions diverge about the practice This thesis analyses the parties' different incentives to engage in TPF and by doing so their preferences about its design Focus of this incentive analysis lies on the funder funded party non funded party lawyer and arbitrator Conflicts arise between funder and funded party in regard to control issues relationship to the funder and information sharing Other problems arise between the funded party and the parties which are not directly involved in the funding agreement The thesis evaluates the most pressing issues in this area to be the issues regarding disclosure preferences cost orders potential waiver of legal privilege and concerns about arbitrators and lawyer s conflicts of interest In a second part it is analysed what kind of signals are sent in the different dispute stages and how they affect the other parties The funding industry is mainly unregulated which allows the funder to usually succeed in acting according to his will However none of the parties can really be sure how the case will turn out as many uncertainties exist and arbitrators if they can decide on questions in connection with TPF do not decide unanimously Some of the issues are also not unique to TPF but pose challenges to the actors also in other practice areas The elimination of these conflicts of interest requires deciding which actor s interests should dominate Until now regulators have not acted to improve the situation Many commentators view a disclosure requirement to improve the situation and initial attempts have been made by adapting the IBA Guidelines Also setting up some more stringent rules regarding the behaviour of funders might improve the current status

Third-Party Funding in International Arbitration, Second Edition Victoria Sahani, 2017 This second edition expertly reveals the nuances of third party funding in international arbitration examines the phenomenon in key jurisdictions and provides a reliable resource for users and potential users who may wish to tap into and make use of this distinctive funding tool Since the first edition of this invaluable book in 2012 third party funding has become more mainstream in international arbitration practice The second edition includes discussion of recent institutional developments as they relate to third party funding including the work of the ICCA Queen Mary Task Force on third party funding and how third party funding is being incorporated into arbitral rules and investment treaties This updated book is well written and covers an interesting topical and previously unexplored aspect of international arbitration and it concludes with observations regarding third party funding in international investment arbitration and predictions regarding the future of the third party funding industry worldwide

Third Party Funding in International Investment Arbitration Eric De Brabandere, Julia Lepeltak, 2012 International investment arbitration involves high costs both for the investor and the State appearing in proceedings A relatively recent phenomenon in international investment arbitration is the financing of the proceedings by a third party funder The third party funder as such has no interest in the substantive issues of the arbitral proceedings but instead invests in the proceedings hoping to make a considerable profit upon the settlement of the dispute International arbitrators have in principle no competence to address the third party funding agreement because their competence is limited to the dispute between the foreign investor and the host State The funding agreement is thus alien to the legal relations between the foreign investor and the host State After an analysis of the rationale concept and principles of third party funding this Article will analyse whether tribunals may nevertheless use their discretion to intervene in or take into consideration the relationship between the investor and its third party funder in particular in view of the allocation of costs in the arbitral proceedings This Article will also investigate whether the existence of a funding agreement is subjected to any rule on transparency and to an obligation of disclosure in essence in order to ensure the respect of the principle of equality of arms

Third Party Funding in International Arbitration Jeffery Commission, Yasmin Mohammad, 2018-10-14 Third party funding TPF where specialist companies help finance a client's legal fees in exchange for a share of the final award is becoming increasingly prevalent in international arbitration This work provides a comprehensive practitioner guide to the law and practice of international arbitration where third party funding is involved with detailed reference to existing cases procedural orders and final awards The book is comprised of five parts together covering the life cycle of a funder's involvement in an arbitration background case assessment key terms of the funding agreement the conduct of the arbitration and the award The authors include references to relevant landmark decisions of national courts addressing third party funding issues in arbitrations and an appendix provides a list of all known funded investor state cases with comprehensive details about the identity of the funder the dispute the duration the cost and the result As the discussion of TPF in arbitration continues to be of vital importance in the field it is imperative that all international arbitration practitioners have access to a balanced multi faceted view of the practice and its issues This book provides much needed guidance suitable for all practitioners and students

Third-Party Funding in International Arbitration William W. Park, 2014 Third party funding raises a host of ethical and procedural issues for international arbitration perhaps most notably in connection with arbitrator comportment The need for sustained study of these concerns prompted establishment of a Task Force on Third Party Funding in International Arbitration convened by the International Council for Commercial Arbitration ICCA along with Queen Mary College at the University of London The Task Force comprised of stakeholders from a range of viewpoints and backgrounds will assess both real and perceived concerns that this relatively new practice raises as well as what might be done and why This article outlines the Task Force's approach to these issues work to date and future aims Finances in International Arbitration

Regulation of Third Party

Funding in International Commercial Arbitration - Perspective from Hong Kong Haifan HU, 2017 It is perhaps no longer of significance to engage in further debates on whether third party funding in international commercial arbitration is an evil hazard It may be said that the consensus nowadays is to explore the most appropriate way of regulating such novel creature This paper seeks to join such exploration by first providing a legal basis for third party funding to be insulated from the effect of the ancient law of champerty Secondly it provides a detailed analysis of the locus standi of third party funders in arbitration by reference to Hong Kong law relating to non signatories Based on the unique legal status of third party funders this paper argues that special measures should be taken to maintain the integrity of the arbitral process and to protect the unfunded party from unjust results 1 the identity of the funder shall be disclosed but the content of the funding agreement will be disclosed only if normal evidentiary burden has been fulfilled 2 arbitral tribunals should consider all relevant circumstances of the case when considering applications for security for costs and it should be made clear that mere existence of funding relationship does not lead to an automatic order for security for costs 3 amending the Arbitration Ordinance is the most direct way to make funders liable for adverse costs orders but the statute should be amended in such a way that the non signatories law is respected funders are not punished and opponents are not getting a windfall
