Fundamentals Chaim T. Horovitz,2012-12-06 Biochemistry of Scandium and Yttrium gathers together existing knowledge about scandium and yttrium from a wide variety of disciplines Part 1 will present a comparative study of the physical and chemical properties of scandium and yttrium looking at both their similarities and their differences Part 2 will address the biochemical aspects of these two elements and the various medical and environmental applications While these elements are relatively rare in nature these books will show that they have unusual physical and chemical properties and a disproportionate number of important applications Improved analytical techniques have revealed that scandium and yttrium are present throughout living matter even though only a relatively limited number of species have been analyzed so far This fact of course has far ranging implications for biological and environmental concerns Part 1 also contains a discussion of the interactions of scandium and yttrium with molecules of biological interest such as organic acids carbohydrates proteins nucleotides and other biologically active molecules The major impacts of scandium and yttrium in science technology and medicine will be of interest to a wide variety of researchers including geochemists inorganic and organic chemists clinical biochemists and those specializing in environmental protection Biochemistry of Scandium and Yttrium Part 1 and Part 2 will be especially welcome because the last book published on the biochemistry of scandium appeared over 20 years ago and the only book mentioning the biochemistry of yttrium came out in 1990 Trace Elements in Man and Animals 10 A.M.

Roussel,A.E. Favier,R.A. Anderson,2000-08-31 This volume containing the proceedings of the tenth of the highly successful TEMA meetings presents recent progress in the research on the functional role and metabolism of trace elements and new developments in the understanding of molecular and cellular biology Hair Research C.E. Orfanos,W. Montagna,G. Stüttgen,2012-12-06 Several years ago a friendly looking young man walked into my office at the University Department of Dermatology in Cologne introduced himself as a diplomate chemist executive member of a family owned rather small German company manufacturing hair care products and proposed to me straight forward to organize an international meeting on hair research In view of the large number of new developments in the field something like this should be done after all he said he also promised to provide financial support Such a meeting should be on the highest possible level I said and he agreed I took the challenge and my visitor kept his promise Three years later the First International Hair Congress was organized at the sophisticated new Congress Center in Hamburg in which 630 participants from 36 countries were registered After three and a half days of formal sessions informal discussions workshops and poster presentations our unanimous feeling was that this has been a most successful meeting The young chemist was right The idea was excellent The growth and presence of hair and its distribution over the human body as a cosmetic attribute has become during the last two decades a matter of tremendous emotional significance Hair can be rather easily formed according to one's sense of style representing his personal image and his social feeling If it becomes unacceptable or out of fashion the hair style can be easily changed the hair regrows as a biological requisite without any additional cost The Complete Cancer Cleanse Cherie Calbom,John Calbom,Michael Mahaffey,2006-12-31 Cherie Calbom The Juice Lady therapist John Calbom and Michael Mahaffey a twenty year cancer survivor present a unique multi disciplinary approach to fighting cancer Transmembrane Traffic of Metals in the Epidermis as a Phenomenon of Self-Organisation Valery Ivanovich Petukhov,Egor Vladimirovich Dmitriev,2025-06-19 The monograph presents the results of the study of homeostasis of trace elements in human hair Statistical analysis of extensive data sets containing concentrations of metals in this biosubstrate in different groups of healthy people has been carried out The authors failed to confirm the correctness of the stable and widespread in modern elementology opinion that by the level of concentration of this or that metal in hair it is possible to make judgements about its content in the whole organism Such extrapolation is not only unreasonable but also potentially dangerous as it can lead to diagnostic and therapeutic corrective errors Furthermore evidence has been obtained that metal ligand homeostasis in an epidermal derivative hair is associated with self organised criticality SC phenomena Thus shifts in metal homeostasis in hair spectrometry to avoid unwarranted generalisations should be attributed only to this substrate hair Bodies of Evidence Anne L. Grauer,1995-05-02 A group of contributors highlight advances made in paleopathology and demography through the analyses of historic cemeteries These advancements include associations of documentary evidence with skeletal evaluations insights into history gained through the use of skeletal analyses when no documentation exists and applications of new evaluative techniques Provides a glimpse into the problems faced by researchers embarking on the excavation and or analysis of historic human remains
