Training For Doctoral Research Interpreter And Translator Trainer:

Training for Doctoral Research J IAN Mason, 2009-01-30 Following the rapid expansion of translation studies as an emergent inter discipline over recent decades demand for doctoral research opportunities is now growing fast in many countries At the same time doctoral training packages of a generic nature have been elaborated and refined at many universities drawing on long traditions of doctoral research in established disciplines A degree of consensus no doubt exists on such matters as the need for rigor method and the generation of new knowledge Beyond that however there are a host of issues specific to translation and interpreting studies that remain under researched and under discussed Contributors to this special issue encourage reflection on a range of issues in ways that foster further debate and collaboration on the development of doctoral studies within the field A number of concrete proposals are offered that could be adapted to local situations in different countries and academic settings While some of the contributions adopt a mainly empirical stance others adopt a broad perspective on training citing examples of widely differing projects Two contributors offer insights from personal experience of doctoral study while another describes the organization of doctoral work within the conceptual framework of a research group All consider training from the angle of student needs and offer concrete suggestions for ensuring that doctoral candidates are equipped with the guidance concepts methods and tools required for success

Research Methodologies in Translation Studies Gabriela Saldanha, Sharon O'Brien, 2014-04-08 As an interdisciplinary area of research translation studies attracts students and scholars with a wide range of backgrounds who then need to face the challenge of accounting for a complex object of enquiry that does not adapt itself well to traditional methods in other fields of investigation This book addresses the needs of such scholars whether they are students doing research at postgraduate level or more experienced researchers who want to familiarize themselves with methods outside their current field of expertise The book promotes a discerning and critical approach to scholarly investigation by providing the reader not only with the know how but also with insights into how new questions can be fruitfully explored through the coherent integration of different methods of research Understanding core principles of reliability validity and ethics is essential for any researcher no matter what methodology they adopt and a whole chapter is therefore devoted to these issues Research Methodologies in Translation Studies is divided into four different chapters according to whether the research focuses on the translation product the process of translation the participants involved or the context in which translation takes place An introductory chapter discusses issues of reliability credibility validity and ethics The impact of our research depends not only on its quality but also on successful dissemination and the final chapter therefore deals with what is also generally the final stage of the research process producing a research report The Evolving Curriculum in Interpreter and Translator Education David B. implementation and reform in academic programs that prepare interpreters and translators for employment in the public and private sectors The evolution of the translating and interpreting professions and changes in teaching practices in higher education have led to fundamental shifts in how translating and interpreting knowledge skills and abilities are acquired in academic settings Changing conceptualizations of curricula processes of innovation and reform technology refinement of teaching methodologies specific to translating and interpreting and the emergence of collaborative institutional networks are examples of developments shaping curricula Written by noted stakeholders from both employer organizations and academic programs in many regions of the world the timely and useful contributions in this comprehensive international volume describe the impact of such forces on the conceptual foundations and frameworks of interpreter and translator education

The Sociological Turn in Translation and Interpreting Studies Claudia V. Angelelli, 2014-09-15 Increasing attention has been paid to the agency of translators and interpreters as well as to the social factors that permeate acts of translation and interpreting In addition agency and social factors are discussed in more interdisciplinary terms Currently the focus is not only on translators or interpreters i e the exploration of their inter intra social agency and identity construction or on their activities and the consequences thereof but also on other phenomena such as the displacement of texts and people and issues of access and linguisticism The displacement of texts whether written or oral across time and space as well as the geographic displacement of people has encouraged researchers in Translation and Interpreting Studies to consider issues related to translation and interpreting through the lens of the Sociology of Language Sociolinguistics and Historiography Researchers have employed a myriad of theoretical and methodological lenses borrowed from other disciplines in the Humanities and Social Sciences Therefore the interdisciplinarity of Translation and Interpreting Studies is more evident now than ever before This volume originally published as a special issue of Translation and Interpreting Studies issue 7 2 2012 is a perfect example of such interdisciplinarity reflecting the shift that has occurred in Translation and Interpreting Studies around the world over the last 30 years Mapping the Research Landscape of Interpreter and Translator Education Xiangdong Li, 2024-11-29

Empirical modelling of translation and interpreting Hansen-Schirra, Silvia, Czulo, Oliver, Hofmann, Sascha, 2017 Empirical research is carried out in a cyclic way approaching a research area bottom up data lead to interpretations and ideally to the abstraction of laws on the basis of which a theory can be derived Deductive research is based on a theory on the basis of which hypotheses can be formulated and tested against the background of empirical data Looking at the state of the art in translation studies either theories as well as models are designed or empirical data are collected and interpreted However the final step is still lacking so far empirical data has not lead to the formulation of theories or models whereas existing theories and models have not yet been comprehensively tested with empirical methods This publication addresses these issues from several perspectives multi method product as well as process based research may gain insights into translation as well as interpreting phenomena These phenomena may include cognitive and organizational processes procedures and strategies competence and performance translation properties and universals etc Empirical findings about the deeper structures of translation and interpreting will reduce the gap between translation and interpreting practice and model and theory building Furthermore the availability of more large scale empirical testing triggers the development of models and theories concerning translation and interpreting phenomena and behavior based on quantifiable replicable and transparent data

Scientific and Technical Translation (STT) is a highly complex and knowledge-intensive field of translation and cognitive linguistics is a usage-based linguistic framework which provides powerful theoretical tools for modelling knowledge organisation and representation in discourse. This book explores the interface between scientific and technical translation studies and cognitive linguistics by discussing the epistemological, contextual, textual and cross-linguistic dimensions of scientific and technical translation from a cognitive linguistic perspective. Particular emphasis is placed on explicitation and implicitation as indicators of the interaction between text and context in STT. The corpus-based investigation of the two phenomena illustrates the complex knowledge requirements pertaining to scientific and technical translation and demonstrates the explanatory power of cognitive linguistics with regard to important textual and contextual aspects of STT.
