Trade In Classical Antiquity Key Themes In Ancient History:

Trade in Classical Antiquity Neville Morley, 2007-04-19 Historians have long argued about the place of trade in classical antiquity was it the life blood of a complex Mediterranean wide economic system or a thin veneer on the surface of an underdeveloped agrarian society Trade underpinned the growth of Athenian and Roman power helping to supply armies and cities It furnished the goods that ancient elites needed to maintain their dominance and yet those same elites generally regarded trade and traders as a threat to social order Trade like the patterns of consumption that determined its development was implicated in wider debates about politics morality and the state of society just as the expansion of trade in the modern world is presented both as the answer to global poverty and as an instrument of exploitation and cultural imperialism This 2007 book explores the nature and importance of ancient trade considering its ecological and cultural significance as well as its economic aspects Trade in Classical Antiquity Neville Morley, 2007 Ancient History: Key integration across the Roman Empire roads writing and coinage The focus then shifts to analysis of key social structures oriented around material forms and activities found all over the Roman world such as trade urbanism slavery craft production and frontiers Finally the book extends to more abstract dimensions of the Roman world art empire religion and ideology in which the significant themes remain the dynamics of power and influence The whole builds towards a broad exploration of the nature of imperial power and the inter connections that stimulated new community identities and created new social divisions

Trade and Famine in Classical Antiquity C. R. Whittaker, 2020-08-30 Trade in antiquity its scale status pattern and context is the subject of lively debate among historians But no analysis has made a special investigation of trade in essential food stuffs Famine and food crisis are also neglected subjects This collection of essays is structured around the two focal points of trade and famine A theme of the volume is that a combination of natural and artificial shortages made inevitable the bulk movement of staples between regions in all periods of antiquity Novel contributions are offered in addition in relation to the cost of shipping the extent of long distance trade in wine the relative demand for wheat and barley the incidence and gravity of food crises the efficiency of famine relief measures and the part played by food shortages in the collapse of the late Roman frontier system

Early Buddhist Transmission and Trade Networks Jason Neelis, 2010-11-19 This exploration of early paths for Buddhist transmission within and beyond South Asia retraces the footsteps of monks merchants and other agents of cross cultural exchange A reassessment of literary epigraphic and archaeological sources reveals historical contexts for the growth of the Buddhist sa gha from approximately the 5th century BCE to the end of the first millennium CE Patterns of dynamic Buddhist mobility were closely linked to transregional trade networks extending to the northwestern borderlands and joined to Central Asian silk routes by capillary routes through transit zones in the upper Indus and Tarim Basin By examining material conditions for Buddhist establishments at nodes along these routes this book challenges models of gradual diffusion and develops alternative explanations for successful Buddhist movement

The Roman Impact on the Economy of the Lower Germanic Limes Region Erik Timmerman, 2023-09-25 The remarkable economic performance of the Roman Empire is now widely acknowledged Yet there is still much debate about its interpretation Although this debate is mainly conducted at the empire wide level regional syntheses are indispensable to its further advancement This book contributes to that purpose by providing a comprehensive account of the Roman impact on the economy of the Lower Germanic Limes region By drawing on a large number of scattered publications and archaeological datasets the work demonstrates that Roman rule also led to important economic developments in a part of the empire that was remote from its Mediterranean heartland

Consumerism in the Ancient World Justin St. P. Walsh, 2013-11-26 Greek pottery was exported around the ancient world in vast quantities over a period of several centuries This book focuses on the Greek pottery consumed by people in the western Mediterranean and trans Alpine Europe from 800 300 BCE attempting to understand the distribution of vases and particularly the reasons why people who were not Greek decided to acquire them This new approach includes discussion of the ways in which objects take on different meanings in new contexts the linkages between the consumption of goods and identity construction and the utility of objects for signaling positive information about their owners to their community The study includes a database of almost 24 000 artifacts from more than 230 sites in Portugal Spain France Switzerland and Germany This data was mapped and analyzed using geostatistical techniques to reveal different patterns of consumption in different places and at different times The development of the new approaches explored in this book has resulted in a shift away from reliance on the preserved fragments of ancient Greek authors descriptions of western Europe remains of monumental buildings and major artworks and toward investigation of social life and more prosaic forms of material culture

The Triumph and Trade of Egyptian Objects in Rome Stephanie Pearson, 2021-04-06 From gleaming hardstone statues to bright frescoes the unexpected and often spectacular Egyptian objects discovered in Roman Italy have long presented an interpretive challenge How they shaped and were shaped by religion politics and identity formation has now been well researched But one crucial function of these objects remains to be explored their role as precious goods in a collector's economy The Romans imported and recreated Egyptian goods in the most opulent materials available gold gems expensive wood ivory luxurious textiles and displayed them like true treasures This is due in part to the way Romans encountered these items as argued in this book first as dazzling spolia from the war against Cleopatra then as costly wares exchanged over the expanding Roman trade routes In this respect Romans treated Egyptian art surprisingly similarly to Greek art By examining the concrete mechanisms through which Egyptian objects were acquired and displayed in Rome this book offers a new understanding of this impressive material at the crossroads of Hellenistic Roman and Egyptian culture selection of methodologies currently used to study ancient material and illustrate their relevance through case studies which span the Greek and Roman world

Trade and Taboo Sarah Bond, 2016-10-25 Trade and Taboo addresses the legal literary social and institutional creation of disrepute in ancient Roman society Tracking the shifting application of stigmas of disrepute between the Republic and Late Antiquity it follows particular groups of professionals funeral workers criers tanners mint workers and even bakers asking how they coped with stigmatization In this book Sarah E Bond reveals the construction and motivations for these attitudes and to show how they created inequalities informed institutions and changed over time Additionally she shows how political and cultural shifts mutated these taboos reshaping economic markets and altering the status of professionals at work within these markets Bond investigates legal stigmas in the form of infamia and other marks of legal disrepute She expands on anthropological theories of pollution closely studying individuals who regularly came into contact with corpses and other polluting materials and considering communication and network formation through the disrepute attached to town criers or praecones Ideas of disgust and the language of invective are brought forward looking at tanners The book closes with an exploration of caste like systems created in the later Roman Empire Collectively these professionals are eloquent about economies and changes experienced within Roman society between 45 BCE and 565 CE Trade and Taboo will interest those studying Roman society issues of historiographical method and the topic of taboo in preindustrial cultures

Galilee in the Late Second Temple and Mishnaic Periods David A. Fiensy, James Riley Strange, 2014 This first of two volumes on ancient Galilee provides general surveys of modern studies of Galilee and of Galilean history followed by specialized studies on taxation ethnicity religious practices road system trade and markets education health village life houses and the urban rural divide The volume draws on the expertise of archaeologists historians biblical scholars and social science interpreters Christians Jews and secular scholars North Americans Europeans and Israelis and those who have devoted a significant amount of time and energy in this research especially those who have excavated in Galilee for many years A key goal of this volume and its companion volume devoted to the archaeological record of towns and villages is to make this information easily accessible to New Testament scholars and Mishnah scholars not familiar with these materials while also usable to the average interested reader Includes several images figures charts and maps

Economics and Empire in the Roman World Matthew J. M. Coomber, 2025-01-16 Over the past few decades the study of biblical economics has developed into an important subfield of biblical studies This subfield uses textual and archaeological evidence to uncover the economic realities behind biblical literature resulting in greater understandings of the lives and possible intentions of those individuals and communities that composed these religious texts and also of their potential relevance or lack thereof to the communities that continue to receive them Economics and Empire in the Roman World has brought together eight scholars of biblical economics to create a repository of what is understood about the socioeconomic realities of those who penned and first received what were to become the Christian scriptures In addition to serving the research and teaching interests of biblical scholars this volume has also been created for the benefit of economic historians anthropologists and sociologists

Collegia Centonariorum Jinyu Liu, 2009 The collegia centonariorum were often seen as the municipal fire brigades or status groups of sorts in the Roman cities Through a close investigation of the chronological development and geographical distribution of the collegia centonariorum their legal privileges and the prosopographical data of members and patrons this volume reveals a much more complex picture of their origins characters and compositions in various regions from the first century BC to the fourth century AD Intricately connected with the textile economy the collegia centonariorum illustrate how elements as diverse as material demand from the military and the city of Rome legal infrastructure urban development and organizations of urban based craftsmen and tradesmen may have interfaced with each other in the Roman world

The Romans and Trade André Tchernia, 2016-09-29 Andr Tchernia is one of the leading experts on amphorae as a source of economic history a pioneer of maritime archaeology and author of a wealth of articles on Roman trade notably the wine trade This book brings together the author's previously published essays updated and revised with recent notes and prefaced with an entirely new synthesis of his views on Roman commerce with a particular emphasis on the people involved in it The book is divided into two main parts The first is a general study of the structure of Roman trade Landowners and traders traders fortunes the matter of the market the role of the state and dispatching what is required It tackles the recent debates on Roman trade and Roman economy providing original and convincing answers The second part of the book is a selection of 14 of the author's published papers They range from discussions of general topics such as the ideas of crisis and competition the provisioning of Ancient Rome trade with the East to more specialized studies such as the interpretation of the 33 AD crisis Overall the book contains a wealth of insights into the workings of ancient trade and expertly combines discussion of the material evidence especially of amphorae and wrecks with the prosopographical approach derived from epigraphic papyrological and historical data
