Women's Health and the Limits of Law Irehobhude O. Iyioha, 2019-12-10 Despite some significant advances in the creation and protection of rights affecting women s health these do not always translate into actual health benefits for women This collection asks What is an effective law and what influences law s effectiveness or ineffectiveness What dynamics elements and conditions come together to limit law s capacity to achieve instrumental goals for women s health and the advancement of women s health rights The book presents an integrated co referential and sustained critical discussion of the normative and constitutive reasons for law's limited effectiveness in the field of women's health. It offers comprehensive and cohesive explanatory accounts of law's limits and for the first time in the field introduces a distinction between formal and substantive effectiveness of laws. Its approach is trans-systemic, multi-jurisdictional and comparative with a focus on six countries in North America, Europe, Asia and Africa and international human rights case law based on matters arising from Hungary, Portugal, Spain, Slovakia, the Czech Republic, Peru and Bolivia. The book will be a valuable resource for educators, students, lawyers, rights advocates and policymakers working in women's health, socio-legal studies, human rights, feminist legal studies and legal philosophy more broadly.

Assessment of Young Developmentally Disabled Children Theodore D. Wachs, Robert Sheehan, 2013-06-29 Our knowledge of the cognitive and social/emotional functioning of developmentally disabled infants and preschoolers derives in large part from our assessment of such children. This book has been developed to familiarize readers with the characteristics of developmentally disabled children and to introduce to readers aspects of measurement that are of relevance to the assessment of atypical infants and preschoolers. The book has been developed with clinicians and prospective clinicians in mind. These are individuals who are committed to the care and education of developmentally disabled infants and preschoolers and the families of those children. The book has thus been written to provide support for the use of assessment data in planning early intervention programs. Of special note in the development of this edited book is that it is divided into four major parts with interrelated chapters in each part. The authors of chapters in Parts II and III had access to the chapters in Part I before writing their chapters. The summary chapters found in Part IV were similarly written by authors having access to all chapters in Parts I-III. This approach to the development of an edited book was chosen as a way of ensuring an integration of major concepts throughout the book. This process is also a reflection of our belief that assessment is an interdisciplinary process involving the synthesis of a number of diverse interests.

Changing Birth in the Andes Lucia Guerra-Reyes, 2021-04-30 In 1997 when Lucia Guerra Reyes began research in Peru she observed a profound disconnect between the birth care desires of health personnel and those of indigenous women. Midwives and doctors would plead with her as the anthropologist to educate women about the dangerous inadequacy of their traditions. They failed to see how their aim of achieving low rates of maternal mortality clashed with the experiences of local women who often feared public health centers where they could experience discrimination and verbal or physical abuse. Mainly the women and their families sought a good birth which was normally a home birth that corresponded with Andean perceptions of health as a balance of bodily humors. Peru's Intercultural Birthing Policy of 2005 was intended to solve these longstanding issues by recognizing indigenous cultural values and making biomedical care more accessible and desirable for indigenous women. Yet many difficulties remain. Guerra Reyes also gives ethnographic attention to health care workers. She explains the class and educational backgrounds of traditional birth attendants and midwives, interviews doctors and health care administrators and describes their interactions with local families. Interviews with national policy makers put the program in context Infant Nutrition Natalie Updegrave Partridge,1989 An Introduction to Global Health Delivery Joia Mukherjee,2022 In 2019 a child born in Japan will live to the age of 84 whereas a child born in Sierra Leone will only live until the age of 54 1 Similar disparities exist between rich and poor communities within countries 2 These differences in life expectancy are not caused by genetics biology or culture Health inequities are caused by poverty racism a lack of medical care and other social forces that influence health A critical analysis of the historical roots of this gross and systemic inequality and of the political economy that continues inequality is a fundamental part of the study of global health

Domestic Violence, Forced Marriage and 'honour'-Based Violence Great Britain. Parliament. House of Commons.
