Energy Research Abstracts ,1992-05 Recharge of Phreatic Aquifers in (Semi-)Arid Areas Ian Simmers,2017-10-19 Groundwater use is of fundamental importance to meet the rapidly expanding urban industrial and agricultural water requirements in semi arid areas Quantifying the current rate of groundwater recharge and define its variability in space and time are thus prerequisites for efficient groundwater resource managment in these regions where such resources are often the key to economic development Attention focuses on recharge of phreatic aquifers often the most readily available and affordable source of water in semi arid regions These aquifers are also the most susceptible to contamination with the recharge rate determining their level of vulnerability Semi arid zone recharge can be highly variable the greater the aridity the smaller and potentially more variable the natural flux Its determination is an iterative process involving progressive data collection and resource evaluation there is also a need to use more than one technique to verify results Direct localised and indirect recharge mechanisms from a spectrum of known sources are addressed in the framework of recharge from precipitation intermittant flow and permanent water bodies The approach taken for each of these reflects the nature and current understanding of the processes involved The volume also reviews current recharge estimation challenges outlines recent developments and offers guidance for potential solutions
