Transforming Practices Hesychastic Correctives Apophaticism:

Transforming Practices Mark W. Flory, 2005 Transforming Practices Mark W. Flory, 2015-12-19 The postmodern revival of interest in apophatic negative theology neglects the integrated system of spiritual praxis that undergirds traditional negative theology and therefore has failed to realize its potential to address the postmodern themes of alterity subjectivity and ontotheology Traditional apophatic theology forms one aspect of the Eastern Orthodox system of spiritual practices known as hesychasm from hesycheia inner stillness This system comprises several elements an emphasis on systematic spiritual progress via the Ladder of spiritual ascent an understanding of the self in its relation to God and the assertion of the radical otherness of God This dissertation brings these elements of apophatic theology into the ongoing dialogue concerning apophatic theology to address the themes of subjectivity alterity and ontotheology Hesychastic practices produce a transformation of human nature that first eliminates the delusory attachments of natural being and then reconstitutes the person on the basis of openness selflessness and relationality The dissertation argues that the practices of cataphasis positive predication apophasis negative predication and the hypera prefix that connotes the otherness of God must be located within this transformative system This relocation of negative theology makes possible the thinking of a self that is at once substantive and interrelational and of God as at once transcendent Unity and immanent and dynamic thus evading the charge of reinscribing ontotheology As a preliminary to this system the dissertation presents the hermeneutic anthropological and providential context of the Ladder of spiritual practices Hesychasm integrates these contextual elements in a system that provides a total environment for the formation of subjectivity The dissertation presents and then critiques the contrasting postmodern apophaticisms of Jacques Derrida and Jean Luc Marion Derrida's analysis of the impossible his rejection of the identification of deconstruction with negative theology and his charge that negative theology remains ontotheological pose serious challenges to negative theology Jean Luc Marion attempts to defend negative theology against Derrida's charges by means of his concept of the saturated phenomenon and his phenomenology of excess In both cases however the lack of a system of spiritual transformation limits the effectiveness of their insights Negation and Knowledge of God:

Neoplatonism and Christianity Daniel Jugrin, 2017-10-06 It is not soul not intellect not imagination opinion reason and not understanding not logos not intellection not spoken not thought not number not order not greatness not smallness not equality not inequality not likeness not unlikeness not having stood not moved not at rest not powerful not intepowerful not light not living not life not eternity not time not intellectual contact with it not knowledge not truth not kingship not wisdom not one not unity not divinity not goodness not spirit not sonhood not fatherhood not something among what is not not something among what is not known as it is by beings not a knower of beings as they are There is neither logos name or knowledge of it It is neither dark nor light not error and not truth There is universally neither postulation nor abstraction of it While there are produced postulations and abstractions of those after it we neither postulate nor abstract it Since beyond all

Hesychasm and Art Anita Strezova, 2014-09-01 Although many of the iconographic traditions in Byzantine art formed in the early centuries of Christianity they were not petrified within a time warp Subtle changes and refinements in Byzantine theology did find reflection in changes to the iconographic and stylistic conventions of Byzantine art This is a brilliant and innovative book in which Dr Anita Strezova argues that a religious movement called Hesychasm especially as espoused by the great Athonite monk St Gregory Palamas had a profound impact on the iconography and style of Byzantine art including that of the Slav diaspora of the late Byzantine period While many have been attracted to speculate on such a connection none until now has embarked on proving such a nexus The main stumbling blocks have included the need for a comprehensive knowledge of Byzantine theology a training in art history especially iconological semiotic and formalist methodologies extensive fieldwork in Macedonia Bulgaria Serbia Greece Turkey and Russia and a working knowledge of Greek Old Church Slavonic Macedonian Russian Serbian Latin as well as several modern European languages French German Russian and Italian These are some of the skills which Dr Strezova has brought to her topic Professor Sasha Grishin AM FAHA Adjunct Professor of Art History School of Literature Languages and Linguistics The
