

A close-up photograph of a highly ornate silver chalice. The chalice has a wide, flared rim with intricate engravings. Below the rim, a bearded man in historical attire is depicted holding the cup. The man has a full, curly beard and is wearing a tunic with a decorative collar. The background is dark, making the silver piece stand out.

Treasured Inheritance 600 Years Of Oxford College Silver:

A Treasured Inheritance Helen Clifford, 2004 The silver collections accumulated and preserved in Oxford colleges since the Middle Ages are an important part of England's cultural inheritance As the repository for Oxford University's decorative arts the Ashmolean Museum proudly exhibited an incredible collection of glittering silver and gilt medieval and Tudor silver and Concepts of Value in European Material Culture, 1500-1900 Bert De Munck, Dries Lyna, 2016-03-09 In contemporary society it would seem self-evident that people allow the market to determine the values of products and services For everything from a loaf of bread to a work of art to a simple haircut value is expressed in monetary terms and seen as determined primarily by the objective interplay between supply and demand Yet this price mechanism is itself embedded in conventions and frames of reference which differed according to time place and product type Moreover the dominance of the conventions of utility maximising and calculative homo economicus is a relatively new phenomenon and one which directly correlates to the steady advent of capitalism in early modern Europe This volume brings together scholars with expertise in a variety of related fields including economic history the history of consumption and material culture art history and the history of collecting to explore changing concepts of value from the early modern period to the nineteenth century and present a new view on the advent of modern economic practices Jointly they fundamentally challenge traditional historical narratives about the rise of our contemporary market economy and consumer society

Domestic Institutional Interiors in Early Modern Europe Sandra Cavallo, 2017-07-05 The early modern period saw the proliferation of religious public and charitable institutions and the emergence of new educational structures By bringing together two areas of inquiry that have so far been seen as distinct the study of institutions and that of the house and domesticity this collection provides new insights into the domestic experience of men women and children who lived in non-family arrangements while also expanding and problematizing the notion of domestic interior Through specific case studies contributors reassess the validity of the categories domestic and institutional and of the oppositions private public communal individual religious profane applied to institutional spaces and objects They consider how rituals interior decorations furnishings and images were transferred from the domestic to the institutional interior and vice versa but also the creative ways in which the residents participated in the formation of their living settings A variety of secular and religious institutions are considered hospitals asylums and orphanages convents colleges public palaces of the ducal and papal court The interest and novelty of this collection resides in both its subject matter and its interdisciplinary and Europe-wide dimension The theme is addressed from the perspective of art history architectural history and social gender and cultural history Chapters deal with Italy Britain the Netherlands Flanders and Portugal and with both Protestant and Catholic settings The wide range of evidence employed by contributors includes sources such as graffiti lottery tickets or garland pictures that have rarely if ever been considered by historians

The Culture of Food in England, 1200-1500 C. M. Woolgar, 2016-01-01 In this revelatory work of social history C M Woolgar shows that food in late medieval England was far more complex varied and more culturally significant than we imagine today Drawing on a vast range of sources he charts how emerging technologies as well as an influx of new flavors and trends from abroad had an impact on eating habits across the social spectrum From the pauper's bowl to elite tables from early fad diets to the perceived moral superiority of certain foods and from regional folk remedies to luxuries such as lampreys Woolgar illuminates desire necessity daily rituals and pleasure across four centuries

Limerick and South-West Ireland Roger Stalley, 2020-08-26 This book contains essays devoted to the medieval art and architecture of Limerick in the Munster province of South West Ireland It underpins the degree to which Irish craftsmen and builders engaged with the rest of Europe and the nature of their relationship with English practice
