On Desire William Braxton Irvine,2006 Irvine looks at what modern science can tell about desire what happens in the brain when one desires something and how animals evolved particular desires He suggests that people who can convince themselves to want what they already have dramatically enhance their happiness

On Desire William B. Irvine,2005-11-01 A married person falls deeply in love with someone else A man of average income feels he cannot be truly happy unless he owns an expensive luxury car A dieter has an irresistible craving for ice cream Desires often come to us unbidden and unwanted and they can have a dramatic impact sometimes changing the course of our lives In On Desire William B Irvine takes us on a wide ranging tour of our impulses wants and needs showing us where these feelings come from and how we can try to rein them in Spicing his account with engaging observations by writers like Seneca Tolstoy and Freud Irvine considers the teachings of Buddhists Hindus the Amish Shakers and Catholic saints as well as those of ancient Greek and Roman and modern European philosophers Irvine also looks at what modern science can tell us about desire such as what happens in the brain when we desire something and how animals evolved particular desires and he advances a new theory about how desire itself evolved Irvine also suggests that at the same time that we gained the ability to desire we were programmed to find some things more desirable than others Irvine concludes that the best way to attain lasting happiness is not to change the world around us or our place in it but to change ourselves If we can convince ourselves to want what we already have we can dramatically enhance our happiness Brimming with wisdom and practical advice On Desire offers a thoughtful approach to controlling unwanted passions and attaining a more meaningful life Unsuspecting Souls Barry Sanders, 2010-03-05 During the nineteenth century something vital went missing the human being In Unsuspecting Souls Barry Sanders examines modern society's indifference to the individual From the Industrial Revolution where the disappearance of care for human beings begins slowly to our own age where societal events require less person to person interaction Sanders laments that what makes us most human is slowly dying Our days are filled with little but a continuous bombardment of information demands on our attention that brings us out of our world and into one of inhumanity and abstraction We are losing entirely any palpable attachment to our physical reality And we've also lost the original sense of a collective consciousness This loss has been fomenting for two centuries now dating back to the rise of European powers and worldwide colonization This has led to the notion that we need to define what is torture an idea that not long ago would have seemed absurd and need to pick our poisons among several forms of radical fundamentalisms each one not only a threat to the other but a threat to humanity itself From Edgar Allen Poe to Abu Ghraib this is a fascinating and worrisome story impeccably researched and compellingly written
