Eighteenth-Century Women's Writing and the 'Scandalous Memoir' Caroline Breashears, 2017-02-06 This book contributes to the literary history of eighteenth-century women's life writings particularly those labeled scandalous memoirs It examines how the evolution of this subgenre was shaped partially by several innovative memoirs that have received only modest critical attention Breashears argues that Madame de La Touche's Apologie and her friend Lady Vane's Memoirs contributed to the crystallization of this subgenre at mid-century and that Lady Vane's collaboration with Tobias Smollett in The Adventures of Peregrine Pickle resulted in a brilliant experiment in the relationship between gender and genre It demonstrates that the Memoirs of Catherine Jemmat incorporated influential new strategies for self-justification in response to changing kinship priorities and that Margaret Coghlan's Memoirs introduced revolutionary themes that created a hybrid the political scandalous memoir This book will therefore appeal to scholars interested in life-writing women's history genre theory and eighteenth-century British literature

American POW Memoirs from the Revolutionary War through the Vietnam War Jon Alexander OP, 2007-02-01 Fourteen student papers from an undergraduate seminar examine American POW memoirs from the Revolutionary War through the Vietnam War The focus of the student authors is on how American POWs have constructed narratives of their internments The papers examine various styles of narration characterization and plot construction and how the POW memoirs are framed with introductions quotations maps and illustrations Overall these papers suggest that the contexts in which authors write POW memoirs may influence the character of the memoirs they write as much as the attributes of their POW experiences American POW Memoirs is a unique collection of papers This publication provides an example of how an undergraduate seminar might move from training students in scholarly practice to providing students a first experience as scholarly practitioners

Censorship and the Limits of the Literary Nicole Moore, 2015-08-27 Though literature and censorship have been conceived as long-time adversaries this collection seeks to understand the degree to which they have been dialectical terms each producing the other coeval and mutually constitutive On the one hand literary censorship has been posited as not only inescapable but definitive even foundational to speech itself On the other especially after the opening of the USSR's spekstrahn those enormous collections of literature forbidden under the Soviets the push to redefine censorship expansively has encountered cogent criticism Scholars describing the centralised control of East German print publication for example have wanted to insist on the difference of pre-publication state censorship from more mundane forms of speech regulation in democracies Work on South African apartheid censorship and book banning in colonial countries also demonstrates censorship's formative role in the institutional structures of literature beyond the metropole. Censorship and the Limits of the Literary examines these and other developments across twelve countries from the Enlightenment to the present day offering case studies from the French revolution to Internet China. Is literature ever without censorship? Does censorship need the literary? In a globalizing era for culture, does censorship represent the final failed version of national control?

The Memoirs of Toussaint and Isaac Louverture Arthur F. Saint-Aubin, 2015-07-15 This book examines the memoir of Toussaint Louverture, a former slave general in the French army and leader of the Haitian Revolution, and the memoir of his son Isaac. The Revolution and its leaders have been studied and written about extensively. Until recently, 2004, however, the memoir of Toussaint has received little attention and only as a historical document. This is the first study that explores the 1802 work foremost as a literary text, a creative production that deploys the techniques of fiction and drama to make truth claims about the past. Moreover, this is the first book-length study of Isaac Louverture's memoir. The two texts are read as examples of how black men thought of themselves as men, citizens, and therefore how they expressed their masculinity at that historical moment as experiences of mourning and loss. This study builds upon three areas of scholarship: the tradition of memoir writing, historicist readings of Toussaint's memoir and descriptions, and theories of men and masculinity within the black Atlantic. The study distinguishes itself in ways that will make it of interest to more than just historians. In addition to using the intersection of race and masculinity as an analytical tool, it speaks to the nature of literary creativity and it draws from studies examining the relationship between history, memory, and fiction. As a result, scholars and students in literary and cultural criticism as well as those in gender and diasporic studies will also find this study of interest and value.
