During the Industrial Revolution in England, soot and other industrial wastes darkened tree trunks and killed off lichen. The light colored variation of the peppered moth became rare and the dark colored variation became more abundant. Eventually, light colored variations were common in only a few areas, far from industrial areas. In the 1930's, biologist Kettlewell did an experiment using both variations of peppered moths. Use the data below to answer the following questions:

	Light moth	Dark moth
Non-industrial woods	14.6%	4.7%
Industrial woods	13%	97.5%

1. What does the data suggest about the number of light colored moths vs. dark colored moths in each of the locations?

The data suggest that the light colored moths are more abundant in non-industrial woods and less in industrial woods. On the other hand, the dark colored moths are more abundant in the industrial woods and less in non-industrial woods.

2. What is meant by "non-industrial woods"? "Industrial woods"?

Non-industrial woods are woods that do not have soot or industrial waste to darken the trees. Industrial woods are those that have been darkened by soot and other industrial waste.
