World Mineral Exploration John E. Tilton, Roderick G. Eggert, Hans H. Landsberg, 2015-10-16 Mineral exploration is an economic activity of worldwide importance. This volume originally published in 1988 makes a substantial contribution to the understanding of mineral exploration and the major economic, political and geologic forces that govern it. Some chapters examine the behaviour and performance of particular participants in the exploration process while others focus on specific countries. This is a valuable title for any student interested in environmental studies and the global impact of economics.

The Green Case (Routledge Revivals) Steven Yearley, 2014-06-23 First published in 1991, this title provides a comprehensive and objective account of the basis of green arguments and their social and political implications. By the beginning of the 1990s, environmental awareness had become widespread, popular and fashionable throughout the West, adopted by politicians, manufacturers and advertising agencies. The book sets out to explain why and how the green wave developed and examines the forces still shaping green politics and policies at an international level. With important implications across the fields of Sociology, Development Studies and Environment and Sustainability, this reissue will be valuable to a broad student and academic readership.

Metallic Mineral Exploration Roderick G. Eggert, 2015-09-16 How has exploration for minerals evolved in recent years? Is it as productive an activity as it once was? Why have changes occurred? Roderick G. Eggert explores these and other questions about the complex set of circumstances surrounding metallic mineral exploration. Originally published in 1987, Eggert documents trends in the level and the distribution of expenditures by mining companies for metallic mineral exploration and examines a number of factors that may be responsible for these trends. This significant study serves as a handy introduction to the subject for students interested in environmental studies, natural resources and economics.

The Evolution of Economic Development in Africa Francis K. Mbombo, 2021-07-11 Within the theoretical framework of the trade growth and structural transformation growth nexuses, the book examines the evolution of African goods and service trade in terms of value and share of global commerce relative to other regions during the period 1948-2017. It also identifies and discusses discernible changes in the composition and structure of African exports and imports between 1995 and 2015 and their implications for economic development in Africa.

The study attributes Africa's laggard trade performance during the period primarily to sub-optimal macroeconomic policies and lack of bold export development policies and initiatives among other factors. It also offers an incisive discussion of several inhibitions to the structural transformation of African exports and imports including lack of finance globalization tariff and non-tariff measures in global markets. The discussion of the evolution of African trade during the period 1948-2017 based on statistics and publications of international organizations including the UNCTAD, the World Bank and the African Development Bank among others is the first of its kind in terms of scope and depth of review of African trade. The analyses of cross-border trade during 1948-2017 and their implications for Africa's economic development prospects constitute a useful reference material for academics and students of African and development studies and African and international policymakers.
