Rural Planning Futures Mark Scott,John Sturzaker,Nick Gallent,Gavin Parker,Amy Burnett,Ian Mell,2025-04-09 Rural Planning Futures charts the critical societal challenges that are reshaping rural places across the UK and Ireland The book evaluates current planning processes and explores the prospects for an enhanced cross sectoral and holistic future practice that mediates rural change towards more resilient and sustainable outcomes Rural places and planning have for too long been viewed as marginal to both the theory and practice of planning However rural places are central to addressing critical global challenges from climate action through nature recovery energy transitions and food security to water quality while also facing more localised conflicts around housing the siting of infrastructure and the challenge of sustaining local services The policy response to these complex challenges has too often been fragmented siloed and fixated on the short term By illustrating how key rural capitals are linked and integrated this book argues for a reset of the rural planning narrative and for the urgent disruption of established ways of working Using innovative case studies the chapters detail how planning for rural places must be guided by the pursuit of social value rather than protecting private interests This book is essential reading for undergraduate and graduate students in planning geography rural studies landscape studies and regional studies

Earth's Waters: Teacher's ed ,2005 Monthly Weather Review ,2001-05 Mechanisms of Stress Tolerance in Horticultural Crops: Physiological and Molecular Insights Milan Kumar Lal,Ravinder Kumar,Rahul Kumar

Tiwari, Awadhesh Kumar, Abazar Ghorbani, Necla Pehlivan, Meisam Zargar, 2025-09-22 The field of horticultural crop production is increasingly challenged by both abiotic and biotic stressors exacerbated by global climatic changes and anthropogenic activities. These stressors including salinity, drought, temperature extremes and heavy metal contamination significantly impact plant growth, yield and quality. Horticultural crops exhibit varied responses to these stressors particularly during critical growth phases such as seedling establishment, vegetative growth, reproductive stages and senescence. Recent studies have highlighted the importance of understanding the physiological, biochemical and molecular responses of these crops to stress. However, gaps remain in fully elucidating the resistance mechanisms and mitigation strategies. Additionally, biotic stressors like viruses, fungi, bacteria, insects and nematodes further compromise crop vigor and productivity. The role of biostimulants, hormones, novel chemicals and microorganisms in enhancing stress tolerance is an emerging area of interest with recent findings pointing to the beneficial effects of phytochemicals, secondary metabolites and antimicrobial peptides in stress mitigation.

On-Farm Implementation of Transformative Technologies and Practices for Sustainability Transitions in Agriculture Callum Eastwood, Julie Ingram, Alan Renwick, Simon Fielke, Paul Edwards, Margaret Ayre, 2025-05-21 There is increased pressure on agri-food sectors globally to transition to more sustainable food systems. This is a response to ongoing challenges associated with environmental impacts, food security, workplace attractiveness, changing knowledge and advisory systems, farmer well-being and technological change. Transformative technology and practices advocated by scholars and policy makers include digitalization and automation, agroecological systems, diversification, de-intensification, local food systems, circularity, transformative value chains and land use change. These changed practices ultimately need to be implemented at a farm scale but the implications will ripple through regional and global food systems. The potential role of transformative agricultural technologies and practices in sustainability transitions is widely researched. However, greater focus is required on the real-world implications at a farm system level and the positive and negative effects of change in the livelihoods of those being urged to change, i.e. farmers, farm businesses and supply chains. At the farm level, transformation can be a complex process that intersects land, livelihoods and security of the wider food supply system. As a consequence, theoretical concepts of transformation to achieve more sustainable food systems can be difficult to implement for farmers due to unforeseen interactions and implications. Better understanding of these experiences is needed for effective and viable transformation options to progress environmental, social and economic sustainability.

Open Praxis, Open Access Darren Chase, Dana Haugh, 2020-07-14 Many in the world of scholarship share the conviction that open access will be the engine of transformation leading to more culture, more research, more discovery and more solutions to small and big problems. This collection brings together librarians, scholars, practitioners, policymakers and thinkers to take measure of the open access movement. The editors meld critical essays, research and case studies to offer an authoritative exploration of the concept of openness in scholarship with an overview of how it is evolving in the US, Canada, Europe and Asia.
