Steinberg,2010-11-22 In the spring of 1999 in the beautiful hills of the KwaZulu Natal Midlands a young white farmer is shot dead on the dirt road running from his father s farmhouse to his irrigation fields The murder is the work of assassins rather than robbers a single shot behind the ear nothing but his gun stolen no forensic evidence like spent cartridges or fingerprints left at the scene Journalist Jonny Steinberg travels to the Midlands to investigate Local black workers say the young white man had it coming The dead man s father says that the machinery of a political conspiracy has been set into motion that he and his neighbours are being pushed off their land Initially thinking that he is to write about an event in the recent past Steinberg finds that much of the story lies in the immediate future He has stumbled upon a festering frontier battle the combatants groping hungrily for the whispers and lies that drift in from the other side Right from the beginning it is clear that the young white man is not the only one who will die on that frontier and that the story of his and other deaths will illuminate a great deal about the early days of post apartheid South Africa Sifting through the betrayals and the poisoned memories of a century long relationship between black and white Steinberg takes us to a part of post apartheid South Africa we fear to contemplate Midlands is about the midlands of the heart and mind the midlands between possession and dispossession the midlands between the past and present myth and reality Midlands is a tour de force of investigative journalism

Fruit Of A Poisoned Tree Antony Albeker, 2011-02-08 In June 2005 Fred van der Vyver a young actuary and the son of a wealthy Eastern Cape farming family was charged with murdering his girlfriend Inge Lotz allegedly bludgeoning her to death with a hammer as she lay on a couch in her lounge The case against Van der Vyver seemed overwhelming His behaviour at the time of the murder appeared suspicious and incriminating and a letter penned by Inge on the morning of her death suggested that the two had been fighting But it was forensic evidence that seemed to prove his guilt his fingerprints were found at the scene one of his shoes was matched to a blood stain on the bathroom floor and traces of blood were found on an ornamental hammer that had been given to him by the victim's parents And yet in one of the most sensational and controversial murder trials in South African legal history Van der Vyver's lawyers sought to turn the table on the police accusing them of fabricating evidence and lying to the judge In Fruit of a Poisoned Tree A True Story of Murder and the Miscarriage of Justice prize winning author Antony Albeker takes you into the heart of the epic courtroom battle Albeker's eye witness account of the trial presents the reader with all the evidence and testimony of the trial while also placing it in the context of a society and a justice system that are being stretched to breaking point

A Country At War With Itself Antony Albeker, 2010-09-13 Crime is tearing South Africa apart Whether it is hijacking or rape a home robbery or a husband's explosion of rage violence is so common that few lives have been left untouched by it The result is a society deformed by its fears Closeted behind locked doors and high walls panic buttons at the ready members of the middle class live lives haunted by fear The poor who are both more likely to be victimised and less able to secure themselves are just as traumatised A Country at War with Itself is a penetrating exploration of South Africa's crime problem Getting behind the statistics to offer a sober and sobering account of the scale of the problem and its evolution it describes how government has sometimes sought to deal with the crisis and sometimes sought to deny its existence The book ends with some suggestions of what needs to be done to deal with this scourge
