Ricciardi, 2013-03-13 These notes are based on a one quarter course given at the Department of Biophysics and Theoretical Biology of the University of Chicago in 1916 The course was directed to graduate students in the Division of Biological Sciences with interests in population biology and neurobiology Only a slight acquaintance with probability and differential equations is required of the reader Exercises are interwoven with the text to encourage the reader to play a more active role and thus facilitate his digestion of the material One aim of these notes is to provide a heuristic approach using as little mathematics as possible to certain aspects of the theory of stochastic processes that are being increasingly employed in some of the population biology and neurobiology literature While the subject may be classical the novelty here lies in the approach and point of view particularly in the applications such as the approach to the neuronal firing problem and its related diffusion approximations It is a pleasure to thank Professors Richard C Lewontin and Arnold J F Siegert for their interest and support and Mrs Angell Pasley for her excellent and careful typing I PRELIMINARIES 1 Terminology and Examples Consider an experiment specified by a the experiment's outcomes forming the space  $S$  by certain subsets of  $S$  called events and by the probabilities of these events      Diffusion Processes Merkel H. Jacobs, 2012-12-06 A basic tenet of present day biophysics is that flows in biological systems are causally related to forces A large and growing fraction of membrane biophysics is devoted to an exploration of the quantitative relationship between forces and flows in order to understand both the nature of biological membranes and the processes that take place on and in these membranes This is why the discussion of the nature of diffusion is so important in any formal development of membrane biophysics This was equally true twenty years ago when tracers were just beginning to be used for the measurement of  $m$       Diffusion Processes in Biology Henry Clavering Tuckwell, 1973
