Utah County Community Assessment 2015 Volume 1:

Utah County Community Assessment 2015 Michael Call, 2015-04-03 Utah County situated just south of Salt Lake County in central Utah is experiencing tremendous growth. Since 2000 the population has grown to nearly 550,000 residents, an increase of 47 percent, the fastest of any county in Utah. Indeed, of the total population increase in the state of Utah, the past decade nearly one third is attributable to Utah County. With rapid population growth comes economic development and opportunities for jobs, education, entrepreneurship, and cultural and social vitality. But rapid growth can also bring increased demands on infrastructure, education, health care, and human services. In the fall of 2014, Civicus Consulting Group from Richmond, Missouri, was contracted to conduct a follow-up assessment of Utah County. The prior community assessment conducted in the fall of 2010 and early spring of 2011 had been a guiding document and resource for policy makers, business leaders, human service providers, educators, health care providers, and others. The intent of conducting an updated assessment was to obtain current data, learn public perceptions, consider stakeholder expertise, and develop recommendations. In order to provide adequate context for this study, the assessment analyzes Utah County in a number of ways. First, it compares Utah County of today with the Utah County of the recent past; this approach allows trends to be identified. Second, it compares Utah County to other geopolitical units, including Salt Lake County, Davis County, Summit County, Wasatch County, and Juab County. With some data comparisons are also made to the State of Utah and to national figures as well. Third, it considers the perceptions and views of experts, stakeholders, and the public at large. This assessment is divided into five sections: The Place, The People, The Future, The Perceptions, and an appendix published as a separate volume. The largest section in Volume 1, The People, is further divided into an Overview followed by Education, Income, and Health. The companion Appendix, with hundreds of data tables, is presented as Volume II of this assessment. After culling through this data, a number of observations can be made among them: Utah County has tremendous assets: Parks, recreation, cultural activities, public and private education, and access to outdoor activities abound. Despite the rapid population growth, crime has remained remarkably low. Improvements in education: Following the 2011 assessment, the community embarked on efforts to improve 3rd grade reading scores and other outcomes of good education. Recent measures indicate improvements have been made, although more has yet to be accomplished. Utah County continues to experience growing pains. Affordable housing is an issue. The prior assessment identified affordable housing as a need in the Utah County area. That need has only increased; the awareness of this need among the general public indicates that more and more individuals are being affected by the high costs of housing. Low income and minority population gaps: Despite improvements in some areas, the influx of non-English speakers continues to cause gaps in income and education. Utah County lacks a comprehensive collaborative long-term human service plan. Although some individual agencies and some groups of similar mission nonprofits work together to collaborate in the delivery of services and in strategic planning, such as the Housing Solutions Workgroup and the Mountainland Continuum of Care.

there is no long term human service planning group or mechanism addressing 10 to 20 year efforts United Way of Utah County and the agencies that joined forces to produce this assessment are pleased to present this report to public officials community leaders service providers public policy advocates and others We welcome your feedback and trust you will find this document of tremendous value as you join with us to improve Utah County

Sharing the Costs and Benefits of Energy and Resource Activity Lila Katz Barrera-Hernández, Barry Barton, Lee Godden, Alastair R. Lucas, Anita Rønne, 2016 Energy and resource activities bring benefits for many but also impose costs on communities This book uses cases studies from across the globe to examine the emergence of sharing and the legal measures which seek to balance the costs of energy and resources projects

Energy Research Abstracts, 1980 Behavioral Science & Policy: Volume 4, Issue 1 Steven Patierno, Sim B. Sitkin, 2019-01-29 The success of nearly all public and private sector policies hinges on the behavior of individuals groups and organizations Today such behaviors are better understood than ever thanks to a growing body of practical behavioral science research However policymakers often are unaware of behavioral science findings that may help them craft and execute more effective and efficient policies The pages of this journal will become a meeting ground a place where scientists and non scientists can encounter clearly described behavioral research that can be put into action By design the scope of Behavioral Science Policy is broad with topics spanning health care financial decisionmaking energy and the environment education and culture justice and ethics and work place practices

Contributions will be made by researchers with expertise in psychology sociology law behavioral economics organization science decision science and marketing The journal is a key offering of the Behavioral Science Policy Association in partnership with the Brookings Institution The mission of BSPA is to foster dialog between social scientists policymakers and other practitioners in order to promote the application of rigorous empirical behavioral science in ways that serve the public interest BSPA does not advance a particular agenda or political perspective Community Resilience Katy

Wright,2021-11-29 This book provides an alternative perspective on community resilience drawing on critical sociological and social policy insights about how people individually and collectively cope with different kinds of adversity Based on the idea that resilience is more than simply an invention of neoliberal governments this book explores diverse expressions of resilience and considers what supports and undermines people s resilience in different contexts Focusing on the United Kingdom it examines the contradictions and limitations of neoliberal resilience policies and the role of policy in shaping how vulnerabilities are distributed and how resilience is manifested The book explores different types of resilience including planning response recovery adaptation and transformation which are examined in relation to different types of threat such as financial hardship disasters and climate change It argues that resilience cannot act as an antidote to vulnerability and aims to demonstrate the importance of shared institutions in underpinning resilience and in preventing socially created vulnerabilities It will be of interest to academics students and well informed practitioners working with the concept of resilience within the subject areas of Sociology Social Policy Human Geography Environmental Humanities and International Development
