King,2009 Two treatises on memory which have come down to us from antiquity are Aristotle s On memory and recollection and Plotinus On perception and memory IV 6 the latter also wrote at length about memory in his Problems connected with the soul IV 3 4 esp 3 25 4 6 In both authors memory is treated as a modest faculty both authors assume the existence of a persistent subject to whom memory belongs and basic cognitive capacities are assumed on which memory depends In particular both theories use phantasia representation to explain memory Aristotle takes representations to be changes in concrete living things which arise from actual perception To be connected to the original perception the representation has to be taken as a kind of copy of the original experience this is the way Aristotle defines memory at the end of his investigation Plotinus does not define memory he is concerned with the question of what remembers This is of course the soul which goes through different stages of incarnation and disincarnation Since the disembodied soul can remember so he does not have Aristotle s resources for explaining the continued presence of representations as changes in the concrete thing Instead he thinks that when acquiring a memory we acquire a capacity in respect of the object of the memory namely to make it present at a later time
