

A painting depicting a Victorian-era parlor scene. In the foreground, a woman in a light-colored dress sits on a patterned sofa, holding a large, open, decorative fan. To her right, another woman in a dark dress is seated, facing away from the viewer. In the background, a group of people, including men in tuxedos and women in elaborate dresses, are gathered. A woman in a light-colored dress stands near a piano on the right, holding a violin. The room features ornate wall decorations and a large potted plant in the center background.

Musical Women in England, 1870-1914 NA NA, 2000-07-07 Musical Women in England 1870 1914 delineates the roles women played in the flourishing music world of late Victorian and early twentieth century England and shows how contemporary challenges to restrictive gender roles inspired women to move into new areas of musical expression both in composition and performance The most famous women musicians were the internationally renowned stars of opera greatly admired despite their violations of the prescribed Victorian linkage of female music making with domesticity the divas were often compared to the sirens of antiquity their irresistible voices a source of moral danger to their male admirers Their ambiguous social reception notwithstanding the extraordinary ability and striking self confidence of these women and of pioneering female soloists on the violin long an instrument permitted only to men inspired fiction writers to feature musician heroines and motivated unprecedented numbers of girls and women to pursue advanced musical study Finding professional orchestras almost fully closed to them many female graduates of English conservatories performed in small ensembles and in all female and amateur orchestras and sought to earn their living in the overcrowded world of music teaching

Crafting the Woman Professional in the Long Nineteenth Century Kyriaki Hadjiafxendi, Patricia Zakreski, 2016-05-13 Over the course of the nineteenth century women in Britain participated in diverse and prolific forms of artistic labour As they created objects and commodities that blurred the boundaries between domestic and fine art production they crafted subjectivities for themselves as creative workers By bringing together work by scholars of literature painting music craft and the plastic arts this collection argues that the constructed and contested nature of the female artistic professional was a notable aspect of debates about aesthetic value and the impact of industrial technologies All the essays in this volume set up a productive inter art dialogue that complicates conventional binary divisions such as amateur and professional public and private artistry and industry in order to provide a more nuanced understanding of the relationship between gender artistic labour and creativity in the period Ultimately how women faced the pragmatics of their own creative labour as they pursued vocations trades and professions in the literary marketplace and related art industries reveals the different ideological positions surrounding the transition of women from industrious amateurism to professional artistry
