Thorley Weir, by E.F. Benson, ... E. F. Benson,1913 Thorley Weir E. F. Benson,2016-01-19 Chapter I The hottest day of all days in the hottest June of all Junes was beginning to abate its burning and the inhabitants of close packed cities and their perspiring congregations cherished the hope that before long some semblance of briskness might return into the ardent streets Providence it would appear justly resentful at the long continued complaints that hot summers were altogether a thing of the past had determined to show that something could still be done in that line but this rejoinder humorous at first had long ago ceased to amuse From morning till night for the last six weeks an unveiled sun had shed a terrific ray on to the baked pavements and reverberating house walls but to day had beaten all previous records and a solemn glee pervaded the meteorological offices the reports of which seemed to claim a sort of proprietary credit in the readings of their incredible thermometers Under these conditions it was with a sigh of relief that Arthur Craddock subsided into the corner seat of a first class smoking carriage at Paddington finding that it was smoking figuratively speaking in less specialized a sense than that intended by the railway company for it had been standing for an hour or two in the sun outside the station But he had clear notions about the risk of chill even on so hot a day and when the train moved out from the dusky glass vault he drew up the window beside which he sat for it was impossible for him to take a seat with his back to the direction of progress since the sight of receding landscape always made him feel slightly unwell But as he was alone in his carriage there was no reason why he should not refresh his clay coloured face with a mist of wall flower scent which he squirted delicately over his forehead and closed eyes from a bottle in his silver mounted dressing case Then he pulled down all the blinds in his carriage and sitting quite still in this restorative gloom indulged in pleasant anticipations Thorley Weir Edward Frederic
