Simulating Minds Alvin I. Goldman, 2006-07-06 People are minded creatures; we have thoughts, feelings, and emotions. More intriguingly, we grasp our own mental states and conduct the business of ascribing them to ourselves and others without instruction in formal psychology. How do we do this? And what are the dimensions of our grasp of the mental realm? In this book, Alvin I. Goldman explores these questions with the tools of philosophy, developmental psychology, social psychology, and cognitive neuroscience. He refines an approach called simulation theory, which starts from the familiar idea that we understand others by putting ourselves in their mental shoes. Can this intuitive idea be rendered precise in a philosophically respectable manner without allowing simulation to collapse into theorizing Given a suitable definition do empirical results support the notion that minds literally create or attempt to create surrogates of other peoples mental states in the process of mindreading Goldman amasses a surprising array of evidence from psychology and neuroscience that supports this hypothesis Research in Organizational Behavior Barry Staw,2006-07-25 This twenty seventh volume of Research in Organizational Behavior carries forward the tradition of high level scholarship on a broad array of organizational topics Like many previous volumes this collection is truly interdisciplinary with chapters ranging from personality and decision making in organizations to interpersonal dynamics such as helping and group process to organizational level analyses of legitimization and change Each of the essays is well reasoned thoughtful and provocative proving once again that the field of organizational behavior is flourishing in both its depth and scope Interdisciplinary with a wide range of subjects discussed by experts in their fields Addresses personality development empowerment creativity dysfunctional groups institutionalization and more Paul Churchland Brian L.
