Seventeenth-century Philosophy Daniel Garber,Michael Ayers,2003 Humanism and Protestantism in Early Modern English Education Ian Green,2016-05-13 This volume is the first attempt to assess the impact of both humanism and Protestantism on the education offered to a wide range of adolescents in the hundreds of grammar schools operating in England between the Reformation and the Enlightenment By placing that education in the context of Lutheran Calvinist and Jesuit education abroad it offers an overview of the uses to which Latin and Greek were put in English schools and identifies the strategies devised by clergy and laity in England for coping with the tensions between classical studies and Protestant doctrine It also offers a reassessment of the role of the godly in English education and demonstrates the many ways in which a classical education came to be combined with close support for the English Crown and established church One of the major sources used is the school textbooks which were incorporated into the English Stock set up by leading members of the Stationers Company of London and reproduced in hundreds of thousands of copies during the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries Although the core of classical education remained essentially the same for two centuries there was a growing gulf between the methods by which classics were taught in elite institutions such as Winchester and Westminster and in the many town and country grammar schools in which translations or bilingual versions of many classical texts were given to weaker students The success of these new translations probably encouraged editors and publishers to offer those adults who had received little or no classical education new versions of works by Aesop Cicero Ovid Virgil Seneca and Caesar This fascination with ancient Greece and Rome left its mark not only on the lifestyle and literary tastes of the educated elite but also reinforced the strongly moralistic outlook of many of the English laity who equated virtue and good works with pleasing God and meriting salvation Our Christian Classics James Hamilton,1859 Christian Classics... with Notices Biographical and Critical James Hamilton,1859 Our Christian Classics. Readings from the Best Divines, with Notices Biographical and Critical by [the Editor] J. Hamilton, D.D. James Hamilton,1857 Richard Hooker, the Rule of Faith, and the Rise of Religious Evidentialism Nigel Voak,2025-03-10 Nigel Voak examines the genesis and evolution of religious evidentialism in England from 1585 to 1700 a deeply influential epistemology which claims that religious beliefs are only justified to the extent that we have evidence to substantiate them and that we have an obligation to proportion our assent to the strength of our evidence Given the propositions of faith lack the evidentness of objects of scientific knowledge absolutely certain assent to such beliefs is therefore epistemically unjustifiable This epistemology which breaks with the previous Christian tradition is classically formulated in John Locke s An Essay concerning Human Understanding first edition 1690 This study argues that this epistemology of belief can be traced back to the English theologian Richard Hooker 1554 1600 whose thought was then developed over the course of the seventeenth century Rule of Faith Controversy which acted as the crucible for these new ideas on faith evidence and certainty Voak shows that the key thinkers in this process including Locke himself were aware that this epistemology came from Hooker and used him in formulating their own influential positions
