Fondren, 2015-12-11 The most famous long distance hiking trail in North America the 2 181 mile Appalachian Trail the longest hiking only footpath in the world runs along the Appalachian mountain range from Georgia to Maine Every year about 2 000 individuals attempt to thru hike the entire trail a feat equivalent to hiking Mount Everest sixteen times In Walking on the Wild Side sociologist Kristi M Fondren traces the stories of forty six men and women who for their own personal reasons set out to conquer America's most well known and arguably most social long distance hiking trail. In this fascinating in depth study Fondren shows how once out on the trail this unique subculture of hikers lives mostly in isolation with their own way of acting talking and thinking their own vocabulary their own activities and interests and their own conception of what is significant in life. They tend to be self disciplined have an unwavering trust in complete strangers embrace a life of poverty and reject modern day institutions. The volume illuminates the intense social intimacy and bonding that forms among long distance hikers as they collectively construct a long distance hiker identity. Fondren describes how long distance hikers develop a trail persona underscoring how important a sense of place can be to our identity and to our sense of who we are. Indeed the author adds a new dimension to our understanding of the nature of identity in general. Anyone who has hiked or has ever dreamed of hiking the Appalachian Trail will find this volume fascinating. Walking on the Wild Side captures a community for whom the trail is a sacred place a place to which they have become attached socially emotionally and spiritually.

Writing for College Robert Alden Rubin, 2018-09-20 This book guides first year students through the dos and don'ts of composition from such basic questions as Can I use I in a college essay to more advanced points about structure and style. Emphasizing the importance of writing in all majors the author encourages students to find their own voice and to express themselves without jargon or academese. Tips are provided on concision use of supporting claims marshaling arguments researching topics documenting sources and revision.

The American Adrenaline Narrative Kristin J. Jacobson, 2020-06-01 The American Adrenaline Narrative considers the nature of perilous outdoor adventure tales their gendered biases and how they simultaneously promote and hinder ecological sustainability. To explore these themes Kristin J. Jacobson defines and compares adrenaline narratives by a range of American authors published after the first Earth Day in 1970 a time frame selected as a watershed moment for the contemporary American environmental movement. The forty plus years since that day also mark the rise in the popularity and marketing of many things as extreme including sports jobs travel beverages gum makeovers laundry detergent and even the environmental movement itself. Jacobson maps the American eco imagination via adrenaline narratives grounding them in the traditional literary practice of close reading analysis and in ecofeminism. She surveys a range of popular and lesser known primary texts by American authors including best selling books such as Jon Krakauer's Into Thin Air and Aron Ralston's Between a Rock and a Hard Place and lesser known texts such as Patricia C. McCairen's Canyon Solitude Eddy L. Harris's Mississippi Solo and Stacy Allison's Beyond the Limits. She also discusses such narratives as they appear in print and online articles and magazines feature length and short films television shows amateur videos social networking site posts fiction advertising and blogs. Jacobson contends that these stories constitute a distinctive genre because unlike traditional nature travel and sports writing adrenaline narratives sustain heightened risk or the element of the extreme within a natural setting. Additionally these narratives provide important insight into the American environmental imagination's connection to masculinity and adventure.
