Card, 2013-10-22 In recent years archaeologists have used the terms hybrid and hybridity with increasing frequency to describe and interpret forms of material culture Hybridity is a way of viewing culture and human action that addresses the issue of power differentials between peoples and cultures This approach suggests that cultures are not discrete pure entities but rather are continuously transforming and recombining The Archaeology of Hybrid Material Culture discusses this concept and its relationship to archaeological classification and the emergence of new ethnic group identities This collection of essays provides readers with theoretical and concrete tools for investigating objects and architecture with discernible multiple influences The twenty one essays are organized into four parts ceramic change in colonial Latin America and the Caribbean ethnicity and material culture in pre Hispanic and colonial Latin America culture contact and transformation in technological style and materiality and identity The media examined include ceramics stone and glass implements textiles bone architecture and mortuary and bioarchaeological artifacts from North South and Central America Hawai i the Caribbean Europe and Mesopotamia Case studies include Bronze Age Britain Iron Age and Roman Europe Uruk era Turkey African diasporic communities in the Caribbean pre Spanish and Pueblo revolt era Southwest Spanish colonial impacts in the American Southeast Central America and the Andes ethnographic Amazonia historic era New England and the Plains the Classic Maya nineteenth century Hawai i and Upper Paleolithic Europe The volume is carefully detailed with more than forty maps and figures and over twenty tables The work presented in The Archaeology of Hybrid Material Culture comes from researchers whose questions and investigations recognized the role of multiple influences on the people and material they study Case studies include experiments in bone working in middle Missouri images and social relationships in prehistoric and Roman Europe technological and material hybridity in colonial Peruvian textiles ceramic change in colonial Latin America and the Caribbean and flaked glass tools from the leprosarium at Kalawao Moloka i The essays provide examples and approaches that may serve as a guide for other researchers dealing with similar issues Foxboy Catherine J. Allen, 2011-08-01 Once there was a Quechua folktale It begins with a trickster fox s penis with a will of its own and ends with a daughter returning to parents who cannot recognize her until she recounts the uncanny adventures that have befallen her since she ran away from home Following the strange twists and turnings of this tale Catherine J Allen weaves a narrative of Quechua storytelling and story listening that links these arts to others fabric weaving in particular and thereby illuminates enduring Andean strategies for communicating deeply felt cultural values In this masterful work of literary nonfiction Allen draws out the connections between two prominent markers of ethnic identity in Andean nations indigenous language and woven cloth and makes a convincing case that the connection between language and cloth affects virtually all aspects of expressive culture including the performing arts As she explores how a skilled storyteller interweaves traditional tales and stock characters into new stories just as a skilled weaver combines traditional motifs and colors into new patterns she demonstrates how Andean storytelling and weaving both embody the same kinds of relationships the same ideas about how opposites should meet up with each other By identifying these pervasive patterns Allen opens up the Quechua cultural world that unites story tellers and listeners as listeners hear echoes and traces of other stories layering over each other in a kind of aural palimpsest
