Wetlands An Approach To Improving Decision Making In Wetland Restoration And Creation:

An Approach to Improving Decision-Making in Wetland Restoration and Creation Mary E. Kentula, 2018-05-04 An Approach to Improving Decision Making in Wetland Restoration and Creation succinctly compares populations of natural and created wetlands to determine whether restored wetlands successfully replace wetlands lost to development or other pressures The book also presents strategies for mitigation of wetland losses site selection for wetland restoration projects and assessment of the level of attainable function for restored wetlands The book is a significant resource for helping wetland professionals planners and ecologists formulate decisions affecting the creation and restoration of wetlands An Approach to Improving Decision Making in Wetland Restoration and Creation, 1993 Wetlands Mary E. Kentula, 1992 The research for this publication was funded by the United States Environmental Protection Agency Contributors include Mary E Kentula Robert P Brooks Stephanie Gwinn Cindy Holland Authur Sherman Jean Sifneos and Ann Hairston Approaches to Coastal Wetland Restoration Robert Eugene Turner, Bill Streever, 2002 Wetlands Lost The 1 879 thousand hectares of coastal wetlands in the Gulf of Mexico GOM comprise 58% of the U S coastal wetland total Turner and Gosselink 1975 These wetlands occur in every GOM state although two thirds of the GOM total are in Louisiana and are typically associated with estuaries bays rivers and the lee side of barrier islands The objective of this book is to facilitate and encourage the restoration of these and other wetlands by reviewing the details of construction and costs which can range from 1 to 45 000 per hectare and by evaluating case studies for levels of success Each approach is presented in brief chapters outlining the essential points of what why and how the approach can be planned and implemented The driving purpose or goal of this book is to accelerate regional wetland gains and to promote cost effective practices in wetland restoration Why do we think that this book is necessary The area of wetlands has been diminishing almost everywhere for the last several hundred years but particularly this century as the twin juggernauts of population growth and per capita resource exploitation expanded In 1927 as the Great Depression in the U S was about to start there were 2 billion people on the planet There were 6 billion people on the Earth in the year 2000 and by 2054 there will be 9 billion Two hundred years ago there were 89 5 million ha of wetlands in the contiguous 48 U S states Dahl 1990 By 1997 this area had shrunk to 42 7 million ha Dahl 2001 From the 1970s to the mid 1980s the annual wetland loss rate was 117 400 ha Dahl and Johnson 1991 The official national policy of no net loss may be why the wetland loss rate slowed to 23 7 thousand ha yr⁻¹ from 1986 to 1997 Dahl 2001 Although wetland loss rates have also declined in coastal Louisiana in recent years Louisiana experienced particularly high coastal wetland loss rates of 12 5 thousand ha yr⁻¹ 0 86% yr⁻¹ from 1956 to 1978 Baumann and Turner 1990 Thus wetland loss has become a national concern National Research Council 1991 Dahl 2001 National Research Council 2001 and particularly in the northern Gulf of Mexico We hope to contribute to the reversal of these wetland losses by presenting wetland restoration and creation approaches appropriate for the Northern Gulf of Mexico and perhaps elsewhere taken from the introduction Technology and Success in Restoration, Creation, and Enhancement of Spartina Alterniflora Marshes in the United States: Executive summary and annotated bibliography Geoffrey Alan Matthews, Thomas Joseph Minello, 1994 NOAA Coastal Ocean Program Decision Analysis Series ,199? Creating Freshwater Wetlands Donald A. Hammer, 2014-07-22 Creating Freshwater Wetlands Second Edition clearly demonstrates the step by step processes required to restore or create freshwater wetlands It presents practical advice on choosing sites getting help attracting and stocking wildlife selecting plants and wetland operation and maintenance This is an excellent book on one of the most fascinat Wetland and Riparian Restoration Society for Ecological Restoration. Conference, 1997

Mid-Atlantic Freshwater Wetlands: Advances in Wetlands Science, Management, Policy, and Practice Robert P. Brooks, Denise Heller Wardrop, 2013-01-25 The lands and waters of the Mid Atlantic Region MAR have changed significantly since before the 16th century when the Susquehannock lived in the area Much has changed since Captain John Smith penetrated the estuaries and rivers during the early 17th century since the surveying of the Mason Dixon Line to settle border disputes among Maryland Pennsylvania and Delaware during the middle of the 18th century and since J Thomas Scharf described the physiographic setting of Baltimore County in the late 19th century As early as 1881 Scharf provides us with an assessment of the condition of the aquatic ecosystems of the region albeit in narrative form and already changes are taking place the conversion of forests to fields the founding of towns and cities and the depletion of natural resources We have always conducted our work with the premise that man is part of and not apart from this ecosystem and landscape This premise and the historical changes in our landscape provide the foundation for our overarching research question how do human activities impact the functioning of aquatic ecosystems and the ecosystem services that they provide and how can we optimize this relationship Bioassessment and Management of North American Freshwater Wetlands Russell B. Rader, Darold P. Batzer, Scott A. Wissinger, 2001-08-07 The first resource of its kind essential practical guidance on wetlands bioassessment and management Although bioassessment has become a vital tool in the successful management of many aquatic ecosystems to date there has been no single book that covers the application of bioassessment principles to wetland ecosystems This contributed volume fills this important gap in the literature with a multifaceted look at the issues and techniques involved in the successful bioassessment and management of freshwater wetlands The book is divided into two parts bioassessment and wildlife management After a review of general bioassessment principles Part I discusses the statistical issues related to sampling numerous sites as well as the application of multivariate procedures and invertebrate functional groups to wetland bioassessment A series of case studies examines bioassessment results using various organismal groups followed by several chapters that trace the relationship between bioassessment and wetland restoration Coverage also explores how to use and sample bacteria algae macrophytes and invertebrates Part II covers key management topics including many that are frequently overlooked in other treatments of the subject Separate chapters discuss how to manage fish waterbirds and mosquitoes in wetlands Other chapters address timber harvest strategies and impact assessment as well as the biological control of an invasive wetland plant As wetland managers work to strike a vital balance between resource exploitation and resource protection this book offers an important repository of practical information to use in meeting this formidable challenge It will be welcomed by wetland managers and scientists environmental engineers ecologists civil engineers and others whose work involves wetlands study and management

Handbook for Restoring Tidal Wetlands Joy B. Zedler, 2000-08-30 Efforts to direct the recovery of damaged sites and landscape date back as far as the 1930s If we fully understood the conditions and controlling variables at restoration sites we would be better equipped to predict the outcomes of restoration efforts If there were no constraints we could merely plant the restoration site and walk away However Wetlands Sharon L. Spray, Karen L. McGlothlin, 2004-02-16 The purpose of the Exploring Environmental Challenges A Multidisciplinary Approach series is to publish a collection of short texts that each explore a specific environmental issue and describe the methodologies theories and findings pertaining to that issue from both natural and social science perspectives Each text contains three natural science essays three social science essays and a concluding essay Intended for introductory environmental studies courses these balanced thoughtful and rigorous texts aim to provide students with a deeper understanding of the relationship between people and their environment and to serve as a foundation for further inquiry and discussion Wetlands introduces students to the natural ecological functions and policy issues of wetlands so they will have a solid understanding of why these ecosystems are necessary and why their governance remains a significant environmental challenge Although not a comprehensive overview on wetlands it does provide background material for a more comprehensive investigation into the science behind and the management of these ecosystems

Symposium on Ecological Restoration, 1994 Status and Trends of Wetlands in the Conterminous United States 2004 to 2009 Thomas E. Dahl, 2011 Data from status and trends provide important long term trend information about specific changes and places and the overall status of wetlands in the United States The historical data base that the Service has developed through Status and Trends provides photographic evidence of land use and wetlands extent dating back to the 1950s This provides an accurate record to assist in future restoration efforts Publisher description Studies of Plant Establishment Limitations in Wetlands of the Willamette Valley, Oregon, 1995 Bibliography of Synthesis Documents on Selected Coastal Ocean Topics Elaine V. Collins, 1994 Compensating for Wetland Losses Under the Clean Water Act National Research Council, Division on Earth and Life Studies, Water Science and Technology Board, Board on Environmental Studies and Toxicology, Committee on Mitigating Wetland Losses, 2001-11-06 Recognizing the importance of wetland protection the Bush administration in 1988 endorsed the goal of no net loss of wetlands Specifically it directed that filling of wetlands should be avoided and minimized when it cannot be avoided When filling is permitted compensatory mitigation must be undertaken that is wetlands must be restored created enhanced and in exceptional cases preserved to replace the permitted loss of wetland area and function such as water quality improvement within the watershed After more than a dozen years the national commitment to no net loss of wetlands has been evaluated This new book explores the adequacy of science and technology for replacing wetland function and the effectiveness of the federal program of compensatory mitigation in accomplishing the nation's goal of clean water It examines the regulatory framework for permitting wetland filling and requiring mitigation compares the mitigation institutions that are in use and addresses the problems that agencies face in ensuring sustainability of mitigated wetlands over the long term Gleaning lessons from the mixed results of mitigation efforts to date the book offers 10 practical guidelines for establishing and monitoring mitigated wetlands It also recommends that federal state and local agencies undertake specific institutional reforms This book will be important to anyone seeking a comprehensive understanding of the no net loss issue policy makers regulators environmental scientists educators and wetland advocates General Technical Report SRS ,1995

Engineering Specification Guidelines for Wetland Plant Establishment and Subgrade Preparation Kenneth P. Dunne,A. Mahendra Rodrigo,Edward Samanns,1998 This report explains the process involved when proceeding from a wetland mitigation design concept to a fill engineering package that is suitable for public bid and advertisement The information provided is geared toward educating nonengineering professionals engaged in developing wetland mitigation specifications The biological foundations for the various elements are first presented followed by full guideline specifications The vegetation specifications address site preparation plant material acquisition transport handling and storage of seeds herbs and saplings planting methods for various stock types different seeding methods timing of planting in conjunction with seasonal variations hydrological considerations such as tidal cycle water level and rainfall patterns equipment access and type protection measures for herbivory inundation and vandalism fertilization and amendment application soil nutrient testing substrate handling transport and storage and minimization of impacts on existing wetland resources The subgrade specifications target construction methods and equipment soil material testing and performance The other soil related specifications quarantine and safeguard existing resources such as friable surface soils and wetland topsoils that can be used to seed a site An International Perspective on Wetland Rehabilitation W.J. Streever,2012-12-06 Bill Streever author of Bringing Back the Wetlands and numerous technical articles about wetland restoration and creation worked for two years to bring together this collection of papers Authors ranging from private landowners to government managers to scientists present regional overviews case studies and discussions of various issues Regional overviews cover areas as small as the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands to areas as large as Australia and Africa Case studies range from relatively small projects such as rehabilitation of damage caused by wheel ruts in the high arctic to much larger projects such as attempts to rehabilitate thousands of hectares of Northern Territory wetlands in Australia Seedbank ecology economics remote sensing community involvement the role of the wetland consulting industry and other issues are discussed In an effort to synthesize information from around the world Joy Zedler presents a model that allows comparison of projects and may lead to better predictability of project outcomes In An International Perspective on Wetland Rehabilitation authors describe planting engineered structures prescribed flooding excavation and other rehabilitation methods from Israel to New Zealand to the Netherlands and elsewhere For the first time one volume offers an impression of the magnitude and diversity of the field of wetland rehabilitation around the globe
