Donald Hughes,2015-05-11

Although the organizing principle of virtually every world history text is development the editor of this volume maintains that this traditional approach fails to address the issue of sustainability By adopting the ecological process as their major theme the authors show how the process of human interaction with the natural environment unfolded in the past and offer perspective on the ecological crises in our world at the beginning of the 21st century Topics range from broad regional studies that examine important aspects of the global environment that affect nations to a study of the widespread influence of one important individual on his nation and beyond The authors take different approaches but all share the conviction that world history must take ecological process seriously and they all recognize the ways in which the living and non living systems of the earth have influenced the course of human affairs The Reporter's Handbook Steve Weinberg,1996

Building the Next Ark Michael M. Gunter, 2004 A timely study of how NGOs are uniquely positioned to help prevent the greatest environmental crisis of all

AI Magazine, 1995 Divided Planet Tom Athanasiou, 1998 Global warming Soil loss Freshwater scarcity Extinction Overconsumption Toxic waste production Habitat and biodiversity erosion These are only a few of our most urgent ecological crises There are others as well and despite the popularity of good news environmentalism few of them are going away In this wide ranging grimly entertaining commentary on the environmental debate Tom Athanasiou finds that these problems are exacerbated if not caused by the planet's division into warring camps of rich and poor Writing with passionate intelligence Athanasiou proposes a simple yet radical solution stop indulging easy calming fantasies in which everything seems to change but nothing important changes at all Instead do what needs to be done now while there is still time and goodwill The bottom line he concludes is that there will be no sustainability without a large measure of justice Without profound political and economic change he argues there can be no effective global environmental action no real effort to save the planet
