

How to translate documents in Word for Mac

If you use Microsoft Word on your Mac for creating documents, then you know it has some nice features. And if you're writing something that you want to translate into another language, Word has that feature built right into it.

You can translate an entire document or just specific text. So if you want to send or share your work with someone speaking a different dialect, in business for example, this is handy.

Here's how to translate documents in Word for Mac.

Translate your selected text in Word

Open Word on your Mac to the document you want to translate. Then follow these steps.

- 1) Click the Review tab at the top of the Word window.
- 2) Select the text you want to translate. Click the Translate button and choose Translate Selection.
- 3) A sidebar will open on the right side to the Selection tab. And the text you selected should automatically appear in the From box at the top. Word should auto-detect your language, but you can make a selection from the drop-down box as well.
- 4) Choose the To language in the box below and you should see the translation immediately.

If you'd like to replace your selected text with the translated text, click Insert.

You can also reverse translation by clicking the Swap button between the two text boxes.
