Trade Liberalization and Tax Reform in the Southern Mediterranean Region Mr. George T. Abed, 1998-04-01 The European Union's Association Agreements with several countries in the Southern Mediterranean Region SMR aim to promote deeper economic integration between the SMR and the EU by establishing a free trade area in twelve years. Because a large share of the SMR countries' total imports comes from the EU, the removal of import tariffs could reduce budgetary revenue by the equivalent of 1 percent to 4 percent of individual countries' GDP. This paper proposes tax and tariff reforms that would help generate the needed compensatory revenue and more important in the long run reduce the distortionary effects of the tax and tariff systems and underpin higher rates of sustainable growth.

World Economic Outlook and International Capital Markets Interim Assessment, 1998 International Monetary Fund, 1999-01-29 This interim update of the IMF's latest regular reports on the World Economic Outlook published in October 1998 and International Capital Markets September 1998 provides a preliminary assessment of the unusual turbulence in international financial markets during much of the period August-November 1998 and its implications for the global economic outlook and for policy. The survey of prospects and policies is the product of a comprehensive interdepartmental review of world economic developments which draws primarily on information the IMF gathers through its consultations with member countries. For its evaluation of developments in financial markets, the report also draws in part on informal discussions with commercial and investment banks, securities firms, stock and futures exchanges, and regulatory and monetary authorities.

Trade Policy Developments in the Middle East and North Africa Bernard M. Hoekman, Han?? Khayr al-D??n, 2000-01-01 While very diverse in many respects, the Middle East and North Africa MENA countries nevertheless also share some common characteristics including a number of important shared challenges for policymakers. The Middle East and North Africa region has great potential for economic growth and prosperity in the 21st century. Yet this potential will not be realized unless governments and private sector leaders in the region forge partnerships for development. An indispensable resource for all those working within the international development community, especially within the Middle East and North Africa region, Trade Policy Developments in the Middle East and North Africa offers policy and institutional alternatives to help both parties achieve that goal. This volume describes and analyzes recent trade policy developments in the Middle East and North Africa. Contributors, almost all economists from the region, review recent trends in trade performance, assess current trade and investment regimes, and discuss some of the emerging microeconomic policy challenges that confront governments and firms seeking to export and trade. Topics addressed include the need and scope for using regional integration and economic free zones as a tool of development, mobilization of non-trade tax bases, efficient enforcement of product standards to ensure health and safety of citizens, and implementation of modern information technologies to facilitate customs clearance. This book is the second in a series from the Mediterranean Development Forum, a partnership of 10 Middle East and North Africa

Exchange Arrangements and Foreign Exchange Markets International Monetary Fund, 2003-03-28. This paper reviews developments and issues in the exchange arrangements and currency convertibility of IMF members. Against the backdrop of continuing financial globalization and a series of emerging market crises since 1997, there have been important changes in the evolution of exchange rate regimes and the pace of liberalization of current and capital transactions among IMF member countries. There has been a shift away from intermediate regimes according to the IMF's official exchange rate regime classification system based on de facto exchange rate policies. The de facto exchange rate classification system has helped to clarify the nature and role of members' exchange rate regimes. It has facilitated discussions with country authorities about the implementation of exchange rate regimes and hence has contributed to more effective surveillance of the international monetary system. The use of exchange controls appears to have been little influenced by the degree of flexibility of exchange rate regimes or the occurrences of currency crises.

Global Financial Stability Report, April 2004 International Monetary Fund. Monetary and Capital Markets Department, 2004-04-06. The Global Financial Stability Report (GFSR) published twice a year by the IMF provides timely analysis of developments in mature and emerging market countries and seeks to identify potential fault lines in the global financial system that could lead to crisis. The GFSR aims to deepen its readers' understanding of global capital flows which play a critical role as an engine of world economic growth. Along with the IMF's semiannual World Economic Outlook, the GFSR is a key vehicle for the IMF's multilateral surveillance. The Global Financial Stability Report was created to provide a more frequent assessment of global financial markets and to address emerging market financing in a global context. The report focuses on current conditions in global financial markets, highlighting issues of financial imbalances and of a structural nature that could pose risks to financial market stability and sustained market access by emerging market borrowers. The GFSR focuses on relevant contemporary issues, not attempting to be a comprehensive survey of all potential risks. It also draws out the financial ramifications of economic imbalances highlighted by the IMF's World Economic Outlook. It regularly contains as a special feature articles on structural or systemic issues relevant to international financial stability.

Developing Countries in the World Trading System Ramesh Adhikari,Premachandra Athukoralge,2002-01-01

Experience suggests that trade liberalization has contributed substantially to the remarkable growth of industrialized countries However for various reasons many developing countries have not yet been able to integrate successfully into global markets and reap the growth inducing and poverty reducing benefits of trade This book argues that while developing countries are heavily represented in the WTO accounting for about four fifths of its membership there is still plenty of scope for the world trading system to work more effectively in their interests World Economic Outlook International Monetary

Fund,2000 Distance as a proxy for trade barriers is found in many studies to matter even for weightless cross border financial investments and lending possibly due to the presence of information asymmetries Its importance is tested in this paper using exports of all five broad categories of the U K s financial and insurance services No trade barriers are found for the bulk of the U K s exports Trade barriers are confirmed only for interest bearing activities being in line with available results in the literature The positive effect of EU membership appears to be small Notwithstanding the uncertainties it suggests that post Brexit disruptions of the U K s export of financial and insurance services may be minor Emerging
