Vexing Nature On The Ethical Case Against Agricultural Biotechnology:

Vexing Nature? Gary L. Comstock, 2012-12-06 Agricultural biotechnology refers to a diverse set of industrial techniques used to produce genetically modified foods. Genetically modified GM foods are foods manipulated at the molecular level to enhance their value to farmers and consumers. This book is a collection of essays on the ethical dimensions of ag biotech. The essays were written over a dozen years beginning in 1988. When I began to reflect on the subject, ag biotech was an exotic, untested technology. Today, in the first year of the millenium, the vast majority of consumers in the United States have taken a bite of the apple. Milk produced by cows injected with a GM protein called recombinant bovine growth hormone (bGH) is found unlabelled on grocery shelves throughout the US. In 1999, half of the soybeans and cotton harvested in the US were GM varieties. Billions of dollars of public and private monies are being invested annually in biotech research and commercial sales now reach into the tens of billions of dollars each year. I Whereas ag biotech once promised to change American agriculture, it now is in the process of doing so.

The Biotechnology Debate Bernice Bovenkerk, 2012-01-04 This book grounds deliberative democratic theory in a more refined understanding of deliberative practice in particular when dealing with intractable moral disagreement regarding novel technologies. While there is an ongoing vibrant debate about the theoretical merits of deliberative democracy on the one hand and more recently empirical studies of specific deliberative exercises have been carried out, these two discussions fail to speak to one another. Debates about animal and plant biotechnology are examined as a paradigmatic case for intractable disagreement in today's pluralistic societies. This examination reveals that the disagreements in this debate are multi-faceted and multi-dimensional and can often be traced to fundamental disagreements about values or worldviews. One of the acute insights to emerge from this examination is that deliberation can serve different purposes vis-à-vis different types of problem. In the case of deeply unstructured problems like the modern biotechnology debate, the aim of inclusion is more appropriate than the aim of consensus. This book highlights the importance of political culture and broader institutional settings in shaping the capacity and propensity of citizens to engage in deliberation and the degree to which governments are prepared to relinquish authority to deliberative mini-publics. Robyn Eckersley, University of Melbourne, Australia.

Life Science Ethics Gary L. Comstock, 2010-08-24 Does nature have intrinsic value? Should we be doing more to save wilderness and ocean ecosystems? What are our duties to future generations of humans? Do animals have rights? This revised edition of Life Science Ethics introduces these questions using narrative case studies on genetically modified foods, use of animals in research, nanotechnology, and global climate change, and then explores them in detail using essays written by nationally recognized experts in the ethics field. Part I introduces ethics, the relationship of religion to ethics, how we assess ethical arguments, and a method ethicists use to reason about ethical theories. Part II demonstrates the relevance of ethical reasoning to the environment, land farms, food, biotechnology, genetically modified foods, animals in agriculture and research, climate change, and nanotechnology. Part III presents case studies for the topics found in Part II Animals, Ethics, and Engineering Rosalyn W. Berne,2025-08-07 Animals Ethics and Engineering Intersections and Implications is a seminal work that explores the intricate relationship between technology ethics and the welfare of nonhuman animals Edited by Rosalyn W Berne this volume brings together leading scholars and practitioners to examine the ethical responsibilities inherent in technological progress and its impact on animal well being
