In Pursuit of the Great Peace Zhao Lu, 2019-05-31 Through an examination of the Great Peace taiping one of the first utopian visions in Chinese history Zhao Lu describes the transformation of literati culture that occurred during the Han Dynasty Driven by anxiety over losing the mandate of Heaven the imperial court encouraged classicism in order to establish the Great Peace and follow Heaven s will But instead of treating the literati as puppets of competing and imagined lineages Zhao uses sociological methods to reconstruct their daily lives and to show how they created their own thought by adopting modifying and opposing the work of their contemporaries and predecessors The literati who served as bureaucrats in the first century BCE gradually became classicists who depended on social networking as they traveled to study the classics By the second century CE classicism had dissolved in this traveling culture and the literati began to expand the corpus of knowledge beyond the accepted canon Thus far from being static classicism in Han China was full of innovation and ultimately gave birth to both literary writing and religious Daoism

Court Culture and Literature in Early China David R. Knechtges, 2024-12-11 The studies brought together here focus upon the literary and cultural activity of the Chinese court during the Han and early medieval period The first section concerns court literature in the Former Han and deals with the role of literature especially poetry at both the imperial and princely courts including one study of the writings attributed to an imperial concubine who used poetry to express her resentment at falling from the emperor's favour The next section looks at a leading court writer of the Late Western Han dynasty Yang Xiong while the third part deals with the leading poetic genre of this period the fu or rhapsody These papers examine major themes such as praise travel dating and authenticity and problems of translation The volume concludes with two articles on food culture in early and medieval China

Huai-nan Tzu Charles Le Blanc, 1985-12-01 Huai nan Tzu 139BC was viewed for its great diversity of subject matter ideas and style by traditional Chinese scholars as a composite work of the Eclectic School It is the author's contention however that one overriding concern pervades the work the attempt to define the essential conditions for a Taoist political utopianism The present study emphasizes Chapter Six of Huai nan Tzu in expounding the theory of kan ying

STIMULUS RESPONSE RESONANCE which postulates that all things in the universe are interrelated and influence each other according to pre set patterns Only in the True Man who is one with Tao and attuned to the cosmos does kan ying attain its ultimate realization the Great Peace and the Great Merging After all concludes the author it is in Huai nan Tzu that we find the statement

Nature and Identity in Cross-Cultural Perspective A. Buttner, L. Wallin, 2013-04-17 Nature and Identity in Cross Cultural Perspective presents 20 essays which explore diverse cultural interpretations of the earth's surface. Contrasted with each other and with the potentially cosmopolitan culture of science, these detailed studies of ways in which different cultures conceptualise nature appear in the context of global environmental change. Understanding across cultural lines has never been more important. This book shows how individual cultures see their own histories as offering protection for nature while often viewing others as lacking such ethical restraints. Through such writing, a discourse of understanding and common action becomes possible. The authors come from the places they discuss and offer passionate as well as scholarly visions of nature within their cultural homes.

Audience: This volume is of interest to academics and professionals working in the fields of cultural geography, environmental history, environmental studies, history of environmental ideas, environmental education, landscape and literature, nature and culture. It can be used for courses in the above mentioned areas and seminars in comparative literature. It can also be used as a complimentary text to provide cultural context to literary readings and for seminars on cultural aspects of the environment.

Love & Protest: Chinese Poems from the Sixth Century B.C. to the Seventeenth Century A.D. Graham Martin, 1972

The Construction of Space in Early China Mark Edward Lewis, 2012-02-01 This book examines the formation of the Chinese empire through its reorganization and reinterpretation of its basic spatial units: the human body, the household, the city, the region, and the world. The central theme of the book is the way all these forms of ordered space were reshaped by the project of unification, and how at the same time that unification was constrained and limited by the necessary survival of the units on which it was based. Consequently, as Mark Edward Lewis shows, each level of spatial organization could achieve order and meaning only within an encompassing superior whole: the body within the household, the household within the lineage and state, the city within the region, and the region within the world empire, while each level still contained within itself the smaller units from which it was formed. The unity that was the empire's highest goal avoided collapse back into the original chaos of nondistinction only by preserving within itself the very divisions on the basis of family or region that it claimed to transcend.
