Performing Early Christian Literature Kelly Iverson, 2021-10-07 Scholars of early Christian literature acknowledge that oral traditions lie behind the New Testament gospels While the concept of orality is widely accepted it has not resulted in a corresponding effort to understand the reception of the gospels within their oral milieu In this book Kelly Iverson reconsiders the experiential context in which early Christian literature was received and interpreted He argues that reading and performance are distinguishable media events and significantly that they produce distinctive interpretive experiences for readers and audiences alike Iverson marshals an array of methodological perspectives demonstrating how performance generates a unique experiential context that shapes and informs the interpretive process Iverson's study explores the dynamic oral environment in which ancient audiences experienced the gospel stories He shows why an understanding of oral performance has important implications for the study of the NT as well as for several issues that are largely unquestioned by biblical scholars

Performing Specimens Gianna Bouchard, 2020-01-09 Through an examination of examples from performance museum displays and popular culture that stage the body as a specimen Performing Specimens maps the relations between these performative acts and the medical practices of collecting storing and showing specimens in a variety of modes and contexts Moving from an examination of the medical and historical contexts of specimen display in the museum and the anatomy theatre to contemporary performance Gianna Bouchard engages with examples from live art bio art popular culture and theatre that stage the performer's body as a specimen. It examines the ethical relationships involved in these particular moments of display both in the staging and in how we look at the specimen body. This is a landmark study for those working in the fields of theatre performance and the medical humanities with a specific focus on the ethics of display and the ethics of spectatorship emerging at the intersection of performance and medicine. Among the works and examples considered are 18th century anatomical waxes from the Museo di Storia Naturale la Specola in Florence Italy and their contemporary version in the Bodyworlds exhibition of plastinated corpses, organ retention scandals, current legislation such as the Human Tissue Act 2004, the work of performance company Clod Ensemble and Stein Holum Projects, the performer and disability activist Mat Fraser and live artist Martin O'Brien alongside visual artists Helen Pynor and Peta Clancy, artists Peggy Shaw and ORLAN.

Embodying Art Chiara Cappelletto, 2022-11-08. In recent years, neuroscientists have made ambitious attempts to explain artistic processes and spectatorship through brain imaging techniques. But can brain science really unravel the workings of art? Is the brain in fact the site of aesthetic appreciation? Embodying Art recasts the relationship between neuroscience and aesthetics and calls for shifting the focus of inquiry from the brain itself to personal experience in the world. Chiara Cappelletto presents close readings of neuroscientific and philosophical scholarship as well as artworks and art criticism, identifying their epistemological premises and theoretical consequences. She critiques neuroaesthetic reductionism and its assumptions about a mind/body divide, arguing that the brain is embodied and embedded in affective, cultural, and historical milieus. Cappelletto considers understandings of the human brain encompassing scientific, philosophical, and visual and performance arts discourses. She examines how neuroaesthetics has constructed its field of study, exploring the ways digital renderings and scientific data have been used to produce the brain as a cultural and visual object. Tracing the intertwined histories of brain science and aesthetic theory, Embodying Art offers a strikingly original and profound philosophical account of the human brain as a living artifact.

Performing the Remembered Present Pil Hansen, Bettina Bläsing, 2017-12-28. This international collection brings together scientists, scholars, and artist-researchers to explore the cognition of memory through the performing arts and examine artistic strategies that target cognitive processes of memory. The strongly embodied and highly trained memory systems of performing artists render artistic practice a rich context for understanding how memory is formed, utilized, and adapted through interaction with others, instruments, and environments. Using experimental, interpretive, and practice-as-research methods that bridge disciplines, the authors provide overview, chapters, and case studies of subjects such as collectively and environmentally distributed memory in the performing arts, autobiographical memory triggers in performance, creation and reception, the journey from learning to memory in performance, training the relationship between memory awareness and creative spontaneity, and memorization and embodied or structural analysis of scores and scripts. This volume provides an unprecedented resource for scientists, scholars, artists, teachers, and students looking for insight into the cognition of memory in the arts, strategies of learning, and performance and
