Vanishing England A Photographic Journey Through Englands Threatened Landscapes:

Vanishing England Gareth Huw Davies, 1987 Interpreting Archaeology Alexandra Alexandri, Victor Buchli, John Carman, Ian Hodder, Jonathan Last, Gavin Lucas, Michael Shanks, 2013-11-19 This volume provides a forum for debate between varied approaches to the past The authors drawn from Europe North America Asia and Australasia represent many different strands of archaeology They address the philosophical issues involved in interpretation and a desire among archaeologists to come to terms with their own subjective approaches to the material they study a recognition of how past researchers have also imposed their own value systems on the evidence which they presented Shadow Sites Kitty Hauser, 2007-03-29 At certain times of the day at sunrise and sunset the outlines of prehistoric fields barrows and hill forts in the British landscape may be thrown into relief Such shadow sites best seen from above and captured by an airborne camera are both examples of and metaphors for a particular way of seeing the landscape At a time of rapid modernisation and urbanisation in mid twentieth century Britain an archaeological vision of the British landscape reassured and enchanted a number of writers artists photographers and film makers From John Piper Eric Ravilious and Shell guide books to photographs of bomb damage aerial archaeology and The Wizard of Oz Kitty Hauser delves into evocative interpretations of the landscape and looks at the affinities between photography as a medium to capture traces of the past as well as their absence AB Bookman's Weekly, 1989 England's Glory Gareth Huw Davies, Heather Angel, 1987 The American Nuclear Power Industry John Elkington, Tom Burke, Julia Hailes, 1988 Both a handbook and a directory Green Pages details the future influence of environmental issues on European business and the changes in technology design research and politics that these issues engender Leisure, 2007 The wonderfully evocative and poignant photographs in this book show our forebears at their leisure The introduction of shorter working hours and bank holidays in the late Victorian era meant that for the first time many working people had time on their hands away from the grind of daily life In 1938 the Holidays with Pay act created the first statutory right to paid holidays and led to the growth of what we now know as the leisure industries This book shows how people often in their thousands and tens of thousands made the most of their new found freedom The early years of the Twentieth Century also saw the rise in the two mass entertainment industries which would go on to dominate English recreation for the next 100 years cinema and football The unique archive images from the Odeon Cinema Collection shows how the new technology of cinema was quickly embraced by the masses It also shows the immense crowds that football was already attracting encapsulated by a sea of flat capped men sardined together on the terraces of a football ground At the other end of the social spectrum we see the River Thames at Henley packed with boats for the Regatta and hunters chasing down a fox Most of all we see a nation beginning to break free from the shackles of industrialisation and the horrors of two world wars beginning to enjoy itself Backpacker, 2007-09 Backpacker brings the outdoors straight to the reader's doorstep inspiring and enabling them to go more places and enjoy nature more often The authority on active adventure Backpacker is the world's first GPS enabled magazine and the only magazine whose editors personally test the hiking trails camping gear and survival tips they publish Backpacker's Editors Choice Awards an industry honor recognizing design feature and product innovation has become the gold standard against which all other outdoor industry awards are measured
