Understanding Buildings, 1984 This book was written mainly for aspiring architects and civil engineers and covers almost all types of building systems thoroughly It is very detailed and has separate chapters for important topics such as structure climate services lighting acoustics fire safety etc Although the author largely stays away from mathematics he is always clear and concise in dealing even with complex analytical problems As an example I would give his excellent treatment of two and three hinged portals and the fascinating parallels he draws between the engineering ideal of arches and the different types of portals He covers all major construction techniques from timber platform frame construction generally of houses to more complex forms such as the hyperbolic paraboloid opposed double curvature and the esoteric hyperboloid of revolution the opposed double curvature architecture almost always in concrete common in power station cooling towers His writing on accessory systems such as heating air conditioning ventilation and fire detection and prevention are both introductory and comprehensive In all areas from structure to systems he is careful to explain real world rationale in an approachable format that is both thorough and easy to understand
