criminal law From the interviews and published works he has endeavored to piece together relevant data in order to see the system as a whole The first of the three parts of the book is an introductory essay providing an overview of the evolution and operation of the criminal process from 1949 through 1963 The second part constituting the bulk of the book systematically presents primary source material including excerpts from legal documents policy statements and articles in Chinese periodicals In order to show the law in action as well as the law on the books the author has included selections from written and oral accounts by persons who have lived in or visited the People s Republic Interspersed among these diverse materials are Mr Cohen s own comments questions and notes Part III contains an English Chinese glossary of the major institutional and legal terms translated in Part II a bibliography of sources and a list of English language books and articles that are pertinent to an understanding of the criminal process in China

The Psychological Assessment of Presidential Candidates Stanley A Renshon, 1996-05-01 Debate on public issues and where candidates stand on them have traditionally represented the focal point of presidential campaigns In recent decades however rather than asking where candidates stand on the issues the public increasingly wants to know who they are The issue of character has thus come to dominate presidential elections While there is increasing public awareness that the psychology judgment and leadership qualities of presidential candidates count the basis on which these judgments should be made remains unclear Does it matter that Gary Hart changed his name or had an affair Should Ed Muskie's loss of composure while defending his wife during a campaign speech or Thomas Eagleton's hospitalization for depression have counted against them Looking back over the past 25 years Stanley Renshon a political scientist and psychoanalyst provides the first comprehensive accounting of how character has become an increasingly important issue in a presidential campaign He traces two related but distinctive approaches to the issue of presidential character and psychology The first concerns the mental health of our candidates and presidents Are they emotionally and personally stable Is their temperament suitable for the presidency The second concerns character Is the candidate honest Does he possess the necessary judgment and motivation to deal with the tremendous responsibilities and pressures of the office Drawing on his clinical and political science training Renshon has devised a theory which will allow the public to better evaluate presidential candidates Why are honesty integrity and personal ideals so important in judging candidates Is personal and political ambition necessarily a bad trait Do extra marital affairs really matter Finally and most importantly how can the public tell whether a candidate's leadership will be enhanced or impeded by aspects of his personality With this sweeping volume Stanley Renshon has provided us with the most comprehensive account to date of how the public judges and should judge our future presidents
