Social Determinants of Health for the Global Aging Population in Pandemic and Disaster Environments Lené Levy-Storms, Mary Beth Morrissey, Marcia G. Ory,Camille Castelyn,Soohyoung Rain Lee,2025-02-18 From a biopsychosocial perspective physical and to a lesser extent mental health have been a priority for researchers policymakers and healthcare providers relative to social health The hegemony of physical health weakened during the COVID pandemic as mental and social health also emerged as equally important and at risk at the same time Not since the 1960s has society attended to the social vulnerabilities of older adults particularly in institutional settings For the first time the urgency of providing care for older adults has transcended physical settings as frontline workers in hospitals prisons schools and other community based settings as well as families in their own homes also emerged as vulnerable The institutional care workforce faces an ongoing crisis at the same time some countries have restricted migration posing a threat to in home and community based long term care COVID has forced healthcare policymakers to prioritize both acute and long term health issues simultaneously as society tries to regain full functionality COVID and future natural and unnatural disasters associated with climate change threats to democracy discrimination against societal groups based on age gender race ethnicity religion and income status promise to challenge us all to acknowledge and act such that our well being is everybody s well being across the life course We are all aging and how different age groups fare affects how other age groups fare

Analyses on Health Status and Care Needs among Older Adults Jian Sun,Hongye Luo, Yi Zeng,2025-09-12 Globally a shift in population structures and disease spectrum is inevitable The latest global burden of disease study revealed that the average healthy life expectancy has steadily increased from 1990 to 2019 worldwide However there is a concerning trend in which the growth in healthy life expectancy is lower than the growth in life expectancy in 198 out of 204 countries evaluated This implies that people spend more time in sub optimal health despite living longer Moreover non communicable diseases contribute an increasingly significant portion of the disease burden in low and middle income countries growing from one third to almost two thirds from 1990 to 2019 This mainly results from preventable risk factors It is important to approach aging with a positive outlook This entails guaranteeing sufficient medical care and proactively managing health issues in older adults Importantly since several diseases are often irreversible prevention is key Social and psychological factors due to their nebulous harm have struggled to gain attention over a long period We should aim to make the additional years gained during old age as healthful as those in other life stages
