Zola Jabulani Soweto Vacancies:

Orlando West, Soweto Noor Nieftagodien, Sally Gaule, 2012-08-01 A history of the famous Orlando township Until the end of the First World War urban growth in Johannesburg proceeded unevenly and haphazardly but under the impact of a wave of militant struggles by black workers and in the context of the devastating impact of the 1918 influenza epidemic the state became determined to better manage the movement of Africans into the urban areas and to place them in properly controlled locations The promulgation of the Native Urban Areas Act of 1923 was intended to meet these objectives The Act was a hybrid piece of legislation On the one hand it espoused the principles enunciated by the Stallard Commission of 1922 which had infamously declared that an African should only be allowed into the urban areas which are essentially the white man s creation when he is willing to enter and minister to the needs of the white man and should depart therefrom when he ceases so to minister On the other hand when it empowered local authorities to set aside land for black residential purposes it recognised the need to create conditions for the settlement of an urban African population in order to provide a reliable supply of labour to secondary industry The growing demand for housing led the government to establish Orlando named after the chairman of the Native Affairs Committee Edwin Orlando Leake in 1931 when thousands of African families were evicted from urban slums in and around the city centre and moved there The authorities described this as a model native township that was supposedly planned along the lines of a garden city The new location it promised would be characterised by tree lined streets business opportunities and recreation facilities Reflecting the views of a somewhat conservative section of the African urban elite the popular African newspaper Bantu World predicted on 14 May 1932 that the new township will undoubtedly be somewhat of a paradise that will enhance the status of the Bantu within the ambit of progress and civilisation Orlando West Soweto illuminates the genesis of Orlando township and its well known subsequent history which is inextricably linked with the lives of prominent South Africans such as Nelson Mandela and Desmond Tutu amongst many others A beautiful photographic essay complements the testimony from residents who describe the way things were and the way they are now in the heart of Soweto South Africa s most iconic African township Negotiating Pharmaceutical

Uncertainty Eirik Saethre, Jonathan Stadler, 2017-04-25 Telling the story of a clinical trial testing an innovative gel designed to prevent women from contracting HIV Negotiating Pharmaceutical Uncertainty provides new insight into the complex and contradictory relationship between medical researchers and their subjects Although clinical trials attempt to control and monitor participants bodies Saethre and Stadler argue that the inherent uncertainty of medical testing can create unanticipated opportunities for women to exercise control over their health sexuality and social relationships Combining a critical analysis of the social production of biomedical knowledge and technologies with a detailed ethnography of the lives of female South African trial participants this book brings to light issues of economic exclusion racial disparity and spiritual insecurity in Johannesburg s townships Built on a series of tales ranging from strategy sessions at the National Institutes of Health to witchcraft accusations against the trial Negotiating Pharmaceutical Uncertainty illuminates the everyday social lives of clinical trials As embedded anthropologists Saethre and Stadler provide a unique and nuanced perspective of the reality of a clinical trial that is often hidden from view South African Travel and Tourism Cases J. Alf Bennett, Richard George, 2004 The travel and tourism industry in South Africa has shown steady growth over the last decade and many education institutions have therefore introduced new courses to prepare students for careers in the travel and tourism industry Beyond Memory Max Mojapelo, 2008 South Africa possesses one of the richest popular music traditions in the world from marabi to mbaqanga from boeremusiek to bubblegum from kwela to kwaito Yet the risk that future generations of South Africans will not know their musical roots is very real Of all the recordings made here since the 1930s thousands have been lost for ever for the powers that be never deemed them worthy of preservation And if one peruses the books that exist on South African popular music one still finds that their authors have on occasion jumped to conclusions that were not as foregone as they had assumed Yet the fault lies not with them rather in the fact that there has been precious little documentation in South Africa of who played what or who recorded what with whom and when This is true of all music making in this country though it is most striking in the musics of the black communities Beyond Memory Recording the History Moments and Memories of South African Music is an invaluable publication because it offers a first hand account of the South African music scene of the past decades from the pen of a man Max Thamagana Mojapelo who was situated in the very thick of things thanks to his job as a deejay at the South African Broadcasting Corporation This book astonishing for the breadth of its coverage is based on his diaries on interviews he conducted and on numerous other sources and we find in it not only the well known names of recent South African music but a countless host of others whose contribution must be recorded if we and future generations are to gain an accurate picture of South African music history of the late 20th and early 21st centuries Soweto Poetry Michael J. F. Chapman, 2007 This anthology seeks to understand and appreciate a major phenomenon in South African literary and political life the rise to prominence of a Black Consciousness poetry called the New Black Poetry of the 1970s or Soweto Poetry The contributions republished here 25 years later gain resonance in retrospect They draw on the insights of many leading literary commentators including Peter Abrahams H I E Dhlomo Nat Nakasa Es kia Mphahlele James Matthews Lionel Abrahams Douglas Livingstone Njabulo S Ndebele and Mbulelo Mzamane They remind us of what editor Michael Chapman identifies as the inheritance of the Soweto voices part of a global movement towards a non elitist poetry of ethical power The challenge of such an aesthetic a poetry that is both simple and profound lends continuing relevance to these perspectives This collection was initially published in the revolutionary aftermath of Soweto 76 and is reprinted in this current edition Johannesburg , 1979 The Rienner Anthology of African Literature Anthonia C.
