more about Native women's lives in North America in earlier centuries. This question is answered by this landmark anthology, an essential guide to the significance, experiences, and histories of Native women. Sixteen classic essays plus new commentary, many by the original authors, describe a broad range of research methods and sources offering insight into the lives of Native American women. The authors explain the use of letters and diaries, memoirs and autobiographies, newspaper accounts, and ethnographies, census data, and legal documents. This collection offers guidelines for extracting valuable information from such diverse sources and assessing the significance of such variables as religious affiliation, changes in women's power after colonization, connections between economics and gender, and representations and misrepresentations of Native women. Indispensable to anyone interested in exploring the role of gender in Native American history or in emphasizing Native women's experiences within the context of women's history, this anthology helps restore the historical reality of Native women and is essential to an understanding of North American history.

The Impact of Feminist Research in the Academy Christie Farnham, 1987-12-22. Comprehensive, well-written, and useful. A must-choice interdisciplinary work with exciting contributions from the humanities and the social and natural sciences. Quest, a treasure of rich and challenging scholarship that covers many fields: Religious Education, The helpful insights from a wide range of disciplines, Economics to Literature, accumulated here in a focused manner, should be useful to all scholars interested in Women's Studies. Kathryn Allen Rabuzzi, Syracuse University, Religious Studies Review. Exciting state-of-the-art essays across a wide variety of fields. Gender Society. Nationally recognized scholars assess the impact of over a decade of research on women. Disciplining Modernism P. Caughie, 2016-01-26. A Poiré dress, a Catholic shrine in France, Thomas Wallis's Hoover Factory building, an Edna Manley sculpture, the poetry of Bei Dao, the internal combustion engine: what makes such artifacts modernist? Disciplining Modernism explores the different ways disciplines conceive modernism and modernity, undisciplining modernist studies in the process.

Gender at the Crossroads of Knowledge Micaela Di Leonardo, 1991. Gender at the Crossroads of Knowledge offers us much more than a sampling of current work in feminist anthropology. Taken together, the chapters ought to convince readers that feminist anthropology is a force to be reckoned with in the reshaping of our intellectual life. It presents a challenge to the familiar conceptual categories out of which not only our theories but also our everyday experience are built. Feminist anthropology has a very important analytical position in gender studies generally. This volume will do a good job of presenting anthropological contributions to non-anthropological audiences. Rena Lederman, Princeton University.

New Directions in Gender and Religion Brigid M. Sackey, 2006-01-01. Brigid M. Sackey's book is a comprehensive analysis of gender relations in religion in Ghana using gendered anthropological tools of rare insight and originality. The book chronicles the efforts of men and women who bring a repackaged and customized Christianity and health delivery to meet with the specific cultural needs. Sackey disabuses notions of the helplessness of women in Ghana specifically and Africa in general as it highlights women's initiatives and assertiveness as healers and leaders of the churches they have founded in addition to their increased involvement and participation in gender discourses and social change Sackey also addresses the question of HIV and the AIDS epidemic detailing how the churches through the specific leadership of women are supporting a national campaign on the disease Basing her research on an exhaustive library of oral history ethnography theory and case studies Sackey has brilliantly chronicled the relentless proliferation of and innovations in African Independent Churches and their impact on the national health delivery system and its development

Coming of Age in Academe Jane Roland Martin, 2013-10-28 First Published in 2000 At what price entry Philosopher of education Jane Roland Martin contends that feminist scholars have traded in their idealism for a place in the academy In Coming of Age in Academe she looks at the ways that academic feminists have become estranged from women Determining that this is the membership fee the academy exacts on all its members she calls for the academy's transformation Part one explores the chilly research climate for feminist scholars the academic traps of essentialism and aerial distance and the education gap in the feminist text In part two Martin likens the behavior of present day feminist scholars to nineteenth century immigrants to the United States and examines their assimilation into the world of work politics and the professions She finds that when you look at higher education you see what a brutal filter of women it is Part three highlights the academy's brain drain and its containment of women and then proposes actions both great and small that aim at fundamental change In this rousing call to action Martin concludes that the dissociation from women that the academy demands its entrance fee can only be stopped by radically reforming the gendered system on which the academy is based
