Heritage Film Audiences Claire Monk, 2011-06-30 The concept of heritage cinema is now firmly established as an influential as well as much debated and contested critical framework for the discussion of period or historical representation in film most prominently with reference to British heritage and post heritage film successes since the 1980s but also to comparable examples from Europe North America and beyond These successes have ranged from Merchant Ivory's A Room with a View Maurice Howard's End and The Remains of the Day via Jane Austen adaptations such as Ang Lee's Sense and Sensibility to post heritage adaptations such as Sally Potter's Orlando Yet the very idea of the heritage film has rested on untested assumptions about its audiences This book breaks significant new ground in the scholarship on contemporary period films and makes a distinctive new contribution to the growing field of film audience studies by presenting the first empirically based study of the audiences for quality period films Monk engages directly with two highly contrasting sections of these audiences surveyed in the UK in the late 1990s to explore their identities their wider patterns of film taste and above all their attitudes and pleasures in relation to the period films they enjoy and on issues central to debates around the heritage film literary adaptation and cultural value with illuminating and unpredicted results
