Voices Of Resistance And Renewal Indigenous Leadership In Education:

Voices of Resistance and Renewal Dorothy Aguilera-Black Bear, 2015-10-15 Western education has often employed the bluntest of instruments in colonizing indigenous peoples creating generations caught between Western culture and their own. Dedicated to the principle that leadership must come from within the communities to be led, Voices of Resistance and Renewal applies recent research on local culture specific learning to the challenges of education and leadership that Native people face. Bringing together both Native and non Native scholars who have a wide range of experience in the practice and theory of indigenous education, editors Dorothy Aguilera Black Bear and John Tippeconnic III focus on the theoretical foundations of indigenous leadership, the application of leadership theory to community contexts and the knowledge necessary to prepare leaders for decolonizing education. The contributors draw on examples from tribal colleges, indigenous educational leadership programs and the latest research in Canadian First Nation, Hawaiian and U.S. American Indian communities. The chapters examine indigenous epistemologies and leadership within local contexts to show how Native leadership can be understood through indigenous lenses. Throughout, the authors consider political influences and educational frameworks that impede effective leadership, including the standards for success, the language used to deliver content and the choice of curricula, pedagogical methods and assessment tools. Voices of Resistance and Renewal provides a variety of philosophical principles that will guide leaders at all levels of education who seek to encourage self-determination and revitalization. It has important implications for the future of Native leadership education, community and culture, and for institutions of learning that have not addressed Native populations effectively in the past.

Indigenous Educational Leadership Through Community-Based Knowledge and Research Robin Zape-tah-hol-ah Minthorn, Shawn L. Secatero, Catherine N. Montoya, Jodi L. Burshia, 2025-04-15

Indigenous Educational Leadership Through Community Based Knowledge and Research highlights the heartwork of the Native American Leadership in Education (NALE) program. The edited collection illuminates the beauty and essence of NALE, which uniquely conceptualizes Indigenous leadership, identity, philosophy, community leadership and research in ways that have empowered students and graduates to conceptualize and live out their ancestors' prayers and legacy. The editors provide samples of how they have achieved this through the sharing of some of the NALE graduates and current students' heartwork. The book is organized into four sections: Indigenous leadership identities, Indigenous leadership philosophies in relation to the Corn Pollen model, Indigenous community leadership curriculum, and Indigenizing research through collective creations. These four sections make the NALE doctoral cohort curriculum and experience unique in how they center Indigenous experience, scholarship, community voice and research approaches. Collectively, the chapters provide a lens through which one can view and center Indigenous educational leadership.

Indigenous Voices of Girls and Women in Educational Spaces Stephanie Masta, 2025-07-18 Centered on personal reflection and storytelling, this volume weaves together narratives of educational resilience, kinship and auntie support to highlight the importance of Indigenous perspectives in all learning spaces Bringing together the experiences of community members students mothers aunties and academics it shows how the voices of Indigenous women and girls represent their ongoing survival within spaces often focused on assimilation and erasure and puts forward a new way of thinking about the value of Indigenous knowledge It does so using a storytelling approach which celebrates the experiences of Indigenous girls and women and expands the definition of education to include more informal spaces of learning in order to address the contentious relationship between Indigenous communities and formal schooling This celebration of presence accentuates and amplifies the degree to which Indigenous peoples and communities have successfully retained their values and authenticity despite ongoing attempts at assimilation by the dominant culture As such it centers Indigenous perspectives in ways that affirm the experiences of Indigenous women and girls in educational spaces and demonstrate how girls and women have overcome existing structures to ensure the survival of Indigenous knowledges cultures and authenticity Presenting an innovative new approach to supporting Indigenous girls and women and centering the need to create new modes of scholarship and thinking that exist outside of the academic system this book is designed for scholars faculty graduates and educators with interests in education Indigenous studies anthropology sociology and women s studies
