Bulletin of the Museum of Comparative Zoology Museum of Comparative Zoology, 1896 Bulletin of the Museum of Comparative Zoology, 1898 Stations in the Field Raf De Bont, 2015-03-20 Modern zoological research aims to study the animal in its own dwelling place Otto Zacharias a German plankton specialist and former science journalist made this claim in 1905 More than hundred years later it might sound surprising When we think of sites of animal research that symbolize modernity the first places that come to mind are notto use Zacharias s example the parts of inland lakes favored by freshwater plankton The period around 1900 after all witnessed the rise of grand urban research institutes that housed industrial type laboratories filled with mercury pumps new fangled microscopes galvanometers electric centrifuges gas motors and spectrometers Yet Zacharias belonged to a group of zoologists who were establishing a novel way of studying nature in the field They developed what ecologists today describe as place based research It focuses on complex systems of interacting organisms usually through studies over long periods of time in a natural field context This was a modern approach and as such it needed modern infrastructure the field station Beginning in the 1870s a growing number of biological field stations were founded first in Europe and later elsewhere around the world Thousands of zoologists received their training and performed their research at these sites By revealing the intricate activities that enabled them to perform science in the animal s dwelling place Raf de Bont is the first to give this history of how life scientists were brought closer to living nature Arthropod Brains Nicholas James Strausfeld, 2012-01-02 In The Descent of Man Charles Darwin proposed that an ant s brain no larger than a pin s head must be sophisticated to accomplish all that it does Yet today many people still find it surprising that insects and other arthropods show behaviors that are much more complex than innate reflexes They are products of versatile brains which in a sense think Fascinating in their own right arthropods provide fundamental insights into how brains process and organize sensory information to produce learning strategizing cooperation and sociality Nicholas Strausfeld elucidates the evolution of this knowledge beginning with nineteenth century debates about how similar arthropod brains were to vertebrate brains This exchange he shows had a profound and far reaching impact on attitudes toward evolution and animal origins Many renowned scientists including Sigmund Freud cut their professional teeth studying arthropod nervous systems The greatest neuroanatomist of them all Santiago Ram n y Cajal founder of the neuron doctrine was awed by similarities between insect and mammalian brains Writing in a style that will appeal to a broad readership Strausfeld weaves anatomical observations with evidence from molecular biology neuroethology cladistics and the fossil record to explore the neurobiology of the largest phylum on earth and one that is crucial to the well being of our planet

Highly informative and richly illustrated Arthropod Brains offers an original synthesis drawing on many fields and a comprehensive reference that will serve biologists for years to come The Literary Structure of Scientific Argument

Peter Dear, 2015-08-12 In this volume seven historians of science examine the historical creation and meaning of a range of scientific textual forms from the seventeenth to the late nineteenth centuries They consider examples from the fields of chemistry medicine physics zoology physiology and mathematics exposing the rich possibilities for a new historically rooted approach to our scientific cultural heritage Peter Dear presents the case for taking texts seriously asking historians of science to confront issues and techniques moving to the forefront in a number of disciplines and asking literary scholars and literary minded intellectual historians not to put science quietly to one side or treat it as a mere source of cultural metaphors but to understand it in terms of historically specific textual construction The Literary Structure of Scientific Argument will interest historians philosophers and sociologists as well as literary scholars concerned with science Text-book of the

The Mediterranean is an invented cultural space on the frontier between North and South West and East Modern Art and the Idea of the Mediterranean examines the representation of this region in the visual arts since the late eighteenth century placing the idea of the Mediterranean a cultural construct rather than a physical reality at the centre of our understanding of modern visual culture This collection of essays features an international group of scholars who examine competing visions of the Mediterranean in terms of modernity and cultural identity questioning and illuminating both European and non European representations An introductory essay frames the analysis in terms of a new spatial paradigm of the Mediterranean as a geographic historical and cultural region that emerged in the late eighteenth century as France and Britain colonized the surrounding territories Essays are grouped around three vital themes visualization of the space of the new Mediterranean varied uses of the classical paradigm and issues of identity and resistance in an age of modernity and colonialism Drawing on recent geographical historical cultural and anthropological studies contributors address the visual representation of identity in both the European and the Oriental the colonial and post colonial Mediterranean
