Trauma and Resilience Among Displaced Populations Gail Theisen-Womersley, 2021-03-19 This open access book provides an enriched understanding of historical collective cultural and identity related trauma emphasising the social and political location of human subjects It therefore presents a socio ecological perspective on trauma rather than viewing displaced individuals as traumatised passive victims The vastness of the phenomenon of trauma among displaced populations has led it to become a critical and timely area of inquiry and this book is an important addition to the literature It gives an overview of theoretical frameworks related to trauma and migration exploring factors of risk and resilience prevalence rates of PTSD and conceptualisations of trauma beyond psychiatric diagnoses conceptualises experiences of trauma from a sociocultural perspective including collective trauma collective aspirations and collective resilience and provides applications for professionals working with displaced populations in complex institutional legal and humanitarian settings It includes case studies based on the author's own 10 year experience working in emergency contexts with displaced populations in 11 countries across the world This book presents unique data collected by the author herself including interviews with survivors of ISIS attacks with an asylum seeker in Switzerland who set himself alight in protest against asylum procedures and women from the Murle tribe affected by the conflict in South Sudan who experienced an episode of mass fainting spells This is an important resource for academics and professionals working in the field of trauma studies and with traumatised groups and individuals

Ethnocultural Perspectives on Disaster and Trauma Anthony J. Marsella, Jeanette L. Johnson, Patricia Watson, Jan Gryczynski, 2007-11-26 Crises do not occur in cultural vacuums but help often does Good intentions are not enough Lack of cultural understanding sensitivity and competencies can hamper and even harm the professional response to disasters To help and heal one must know and understand the cultural background of disaster victims Ethnocultural Perspectives on Disaster and Trauma offers readers substantive knowledge in these three vital areas of disaster response In this pioneering volume experts on individual and collective trauma experience posttraumatic stress and related syndromes and emergency and crisis intervention share knowledge and insights on the cultural context of working with ethnic and racial minority communities during disasters In each chapter emotional psychological and social needs as well as communal strengths and coping skills that arise in disasters are documented for major minority groups in the United States including specific chapters on African Americans Native Americans Arab Americans Asian Indians Chinese Americans Caribbean Americans Latin Americans Native Hawaiians and Vietnamese Americans Each chapter features information on Demographics major historical events and core values of each population Important cultural insights including communication styles culture specific disorders and valid assessment instruments Therapeutic and healing traditions versus conventional medicine and therapy Perspectives specific to the population s experience with disaster and trauma Authors recommendations for improving services to the population Practical appendices for readers new to the field This unique volume is a cultural competency compendium that will increase to the effectiveness of all who respond to disasters It will also be of interest and value to scholars policy makers and health professionals working in the areas of disaster management crisis intervention and trauma Ethnocultural Perspectives on Disaster and Trauma points readers to what the editors call the path beyond simple assistance to healing and the restoration of hope and meaning Psychological Aspects of Social Axioms Kwok Leung, Michael Harris Bond, 2008-12-29 Humans are surrounded by trillions of stimuli Their eyes for instance can discriminate 7 500 000 colors But there is a severe limitation in the number of discriminably different stimuli that they can process at one time George Miller argued that they can handle no more than seven plus or minus two independent pieces of information at any given time Thus necessarily they must develop ways to simplify the task of processing the information that exists in their environment They do this in many ways One way is to select the stimuli that are most important in their lives what are often called values Another way is to chunk stimuli by linking them to each other so they form bundles of stimuli that can be processed as if they are one entity Generalized expectancies of what is linked with what are beliefs and these beliefs are structured into bundles see Triandis 1972 Culture across the Curriculum Kenneth D. Keith, 2018-04-12 Culture across the Curriculum provides a useful handbook for psychology teachers in the major subfields of the discipline From introductory psychology to the foundations in such areas as social psychology statistics research methods memory cognition personality and development to such specialized courses as language sexual minorities and peace psychology there is something here for virtually every teacher of psychology In addition to discussions of the rationale for inclusion of cultural context in their areas of specialization these experienced teachers also offer advice and ideas for teaching exercises and activities to support the teaching of a psychology of all people Fundamental Questions in Cross-Cultural Psychology Fons J. R. van de Vijver, Athanasios

Chasiotis, Seger M. Breugelmans, 2011-03-17 Cross cultural psychology has come of age as a scientific discipline but how has it developed The field has moved from exploratory studies in which researchers were mainly interested in finding differences in psychological functioning without any clear expectation to detailed hypothesis tests of theories of cross cultural differences This book takes stock of the large number of empirical studies conducted over the last decades to evaluate the current state of the field Specialists from various domains provide an overview of their area linking it to the fundamental questions of cross cultural psychology such as how individuals and their cultures are linked how the link evolves during development and what the methodological challenges of the field are This book will appeal to academic researchers and post graduates interested in cross cultural research
