Where The Dove Calls The Political Ecology Of A Peasant Corporate Co:

Where the Dove Calls Thomas E. Sheridan, 1996-10-01 Thomas Sheridan's study of the municipio of Cucurpe Sonora offers new insight into the ability of peasants to respond to ecological and political change. In order to survive as small rancher farmers the Cucurpeos battle aridity and one another in a society characterized by sharp economic inequality and long standing conflict over the distribution of land and water. Sheridan has written an ethnography of resource control one that weds the approaches of political economy and cultural ecology in order to focus upon both the external linkages and internal adaptations that shape three peasant corporate communities. He examines the ecological and economic constraints which scarce and necessary resources place upon households in Cucurpe and then investigates why many such households have formed corporate communities to insure their access to resources beyond their control. Finally he identifies the class differences that exist within the corporate communities as well as between members of those organizations and the private ranchers who surround them. Where the Dove Calls the meaning of Cucurpe in the language of the Opata Indians an important contribution to peasant studies reveals the household as the basic unit of Cucurpe society. By viewing Cucurpe's corporate communities as organizations of fiercely independent domestic units rather than as expressions of communal solidarity Sheridan shows that peasants are among the exploiters as well as the exploited. Cucurpeos struggle to maintain the autonomy of their households even as they join together to protect corporate grazing lands and irrigation water. Any attempt to weaken or destroy that independence is met with opposition that ranges from passive resistance to violence.

Alexander, Anne Browning-Aiken, 2012-06-15 Neoliberalism and Commodity Production in Mexico details the impact of neoliberal practice on the production and exchange of basic resources in working class communities in Mexico Using anthropological investigations and a market driven approach contributors explain how uneven policies have undermined constitutional protections and working class interests since the Mexican Revolution of 1910 Detailed ethnographic fieldwork shows how foreign investment privatization deregulation and elimination of welfare benefits have devastated national industries and natural resources and threatened agriculture driving the campesinos and working class deeper into poverty Focusing on specific commodity chains and the changes to production and marketing under neoliberalism the contributors highlight the detrimental impacts of policies by telling the stories of those most affected by these changes They detail the complex interplay of local and global forces from the politically mediated systems of demand found at the local level to the increasingly powerful municipal and state governments and the global trade and banking institutions Sharing a common theoretical perspective and method throughout the chapters Neoliberalism and Commodity Production in Mexico is a multi sided ethnography that makes a significant contribution to studies of neoliberal ideology in practice Political Ecology Across Spaces, Scales, and Social Groups Susan Paulson, Lisa L. Gezon, 2005 Environmental issues have become increasingly prominent in local struggles national debates and international policies In response scholars are paying more attention to conventional politics and to more broadly defined relations of power and difference in the interactions between human groups and their biophysical environments Such issues are at the heart of the relatively new interdisciplinary field of political ecology forged at the intersection of political economy and cultural ecology This volume provides a toolkit of vital concepts and a set of research models and analytic frameworks for researchers at all levels The two opening chapters trace rich traditions of thought and practice that inform current approaches to political ecology They point to the entangled relationship between humans politics economies and environments at the dawn of the twenty first century and address challenges that scholars face in navigating the blurring boundaries among relevant fields of enquiry The twelve case studies that follow demonstrate ways that culture and politics serve to mediate human environmental relationships in specific ecological and geographical contexts Taken together they describe uses of and conflicts over resources including land water soil trees biodiversity money knowledge and information they exemplify wide ranging ecological settings including deserts coasts rainforests high mountains and modern cities and they explore sites located around the world from Canada to Tonga and cyberspace Liberation Ecologies Richard Peet, Michael Watts, 2002-09-11 First published in 2002 Routledge is an imprint of Taylor Francis an informa company
